LINDY SEES HAUPTMANN: 'JAFSIE' SIGHTS ARREST

Crime Psychology
The Blue Eagle's Boss

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MORE LINDBERGH ransom money has been found in the house occupied by Hauptmann. At first detectives thought their prisoner had merely seized the opportunity to extort money from Colonel Lindbergh. Now they believe they have the actual kidnaper.

With this criminal, involving a matter important to the nation, great care is taken by authorities to avoid any "rough" methods of obtaining evidence or a confession, such as have sometimes been employed in "third degree" proceedings.

Violence inflicted on the prisoner might, later, tend to weaken all evidence against him, in the opinion of the court, and detectives want "a clear, clean case."

For that reason they are proceeding along "psychological lines."

You have read of the plan to put a crying child outside the prisoner's cell that its weeping might touch his heart and conscience (if any) and bring forth a confession.

Those in charge of the case now believe that the prisoner is suffering from a mild form of dementia praecox, with "delusion of grandeur."

Detectives humor him, it is alleged, even to the extent of assuring him that he is "the greatest man in the world, almost equal to God Himself."

The hope is that gratifying the man's insane vanity may cause him to talk.

It might also defeat the "ends of justice" if too clear a case of insanity were made out.

The law does not permit execution of the insane.

Psycho-analysts and other wise ones that watch Hauptmann, who does not know that he is watched, reported yesterday that he had wept through the preceding night, also that he "cringed" when he heard cheers for Colonel Lindbergh, arriving to testify before the Bronx grand jury, that indicted Hauptmann for extortion.

The West German Beobachter, important Nazi newspaper in western Germany, says all the fuss made in America about the arrest of Hauptmann is based on the fact that Hauptmann is a German. The sapient editor observes, "The fact that the criminal comes from Germany is being utilized for an anti-German campaign of vast proportions." Have you noticed that anti-German campaign?

The Beobachter says, also, that if the criminal "had been a Jew, all the psycho-analysts and philanthropists in the world would have united and made of the criminal an honorable man."

Nazism seems to have a damaging effect on the editorial intellect.

The talking "movies" made pictures of Mrs. Hauptmann and her baby, ten months old, presumably paying for the poses. The mother, urged to make the picture more interesting by singing a German cradle song to her little boy, started to sing, and burst into tears at once. That made it "a great shot."

Clarence Darrow, of Chicago, who knows how to convince juries that murderers, young and old, should go to Heaven, instead of the electric chair, says General Johnson's departure from NRA means the early death of that eagle bird.

And Mr. Darrow, who opposed Johnson and his methods, be-

Bandits Get $3000 in Dudley St. 'El' Holdup

COLLECTORS COWED BY MACHINE GUN GANG

One of the defendants in the slaying of Charles "King" Solomon was sought this afternoon in the Elevated holdup. Police broadcast a radio alarm for this man and asked that he be picked up on sight.

Five machine-gun bandits held up three Boston Elevated collectors just outside Dudley street terminal today, disarmed the collectors, forced them to lie prostrate on the street and then escaped with $2800.

Less than three hours after the bold robbery, a Boston police squad, equipped with a machine gun, gas bombs and bullet-proof vests, sped out of the city, headed by Deputy Superintendent William W. Livingston, on a tip that the bandits were in hiding 25 miles away.

While they were gone on their secret foray, the holdup victims positively identified a rogues gallery photograph at police headquarters as that of one of the five bandits. The identification brought Lynn police into the search.

MISS ADDITIONAL $5000

The bandits missed an additional $5000 in the collectors' armored car in the haste to rifle it and get away as a fourth collector approached the car.

The collectors disarmed were Walter W. McLeod of Washington street, Roxbury; John J. McGowan of Hayden street, Roxbury, and Albert McLean of Lagrange street, West Roxbury.

PARK ARMORED CAR

Louis Rheaume of Overlook road, West Roxbury, delayed after the others in the Elevated offices upstairs in the terminal, arrived on the scene just too late to become a victim.

Shortly after 6 a. m. the collect-

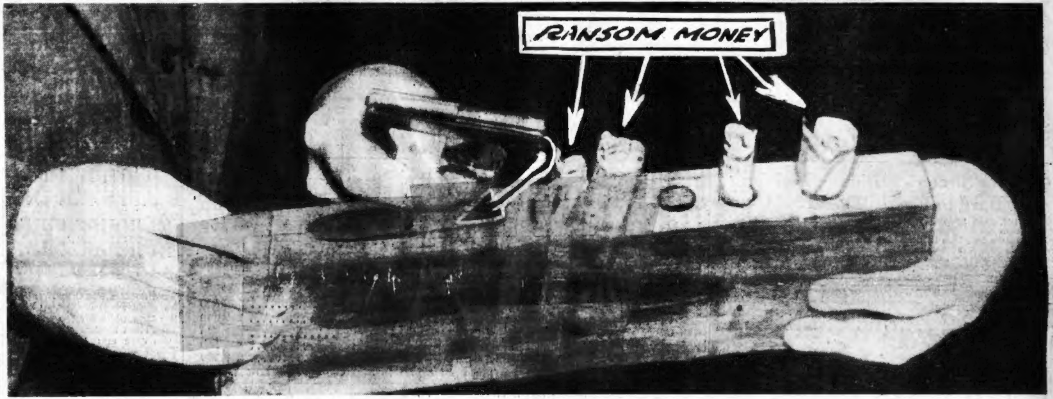
Hauptmann's Hiding Place for Ransom



Here is the cross piece of lumber, bored with holes in which Bruno Hauptmann, indicted in the Lindbergh kidnaping, hid $840 of the ransom money and a small pistol. The piece of wood, two by four and about 18 inches long, contained five holes, into each of which a roll of money was plugged. The pistol fitted into the larger hole. NORMA'S OTHER CASE DROPPED

One more "break" came today for Norma Millen when Police Chief Thomas J. Godley of Fitchburg announced that he would not press for her prosecution in connection with the slaying of Ernest Clarke, sporting goods store manager.

It was also understood today that prosecution of Norma in connection with the Paramount Theater slaying of C. Fred Sumner in Lynn will be shelved. In both cases, the Millen brothers and Faber are declared to have been implicated.

Girl Hinted Cause of 'Poison Death' Try

By ARTHUR J. QUINN

John L. Bauer, 21, who swallowed a rare, slow poison in Cambridge yesterday in a cool attempt at suicide, was revealed by his mother today to be a daring young Pittsburgh chemist seeking a chemical "cure for old age."

At Cambridge Relief Hospital, in great pain, but apparently snatched from the shadow of death, Bauer told the Boston Evening American, however, that he had really tried to die, and intimated a love affair might have been the motive. He said:

"I won't say there wasn't a girl connected with it."

QUIZZED ON HAUPTMANN

The case remained an unusual, dramatic mystery, heightened when state detectives arrived at the hospital and questioned Bauer about the Lindbergh kidnaping.

He had previously denied any acquaintance with Bruno Richard Hauptmann in an interview with the American, and his police interrogators are inclined to believe him.

Bauer's mother, Mrs. Martin G. Bauer, said at Pittsburgh he was

Norma Hoping for Happy Marriage

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

Re-marriage, which not so long ago seemed utterly distasteful and impossible to Norma Brighton Millen, today loomed a ea bright possibility of an even brighter future.

To the question of a second marriage, the minister's daughter, a few months ago, snapped out a positive "No," but today, with only six months more of jail confinement to face, re-marriage was a 50-50-proposition in her mind.

It was an undecided problem today, to be sure, but one which she entertained, nevertheless, although only lightly.

"Maybe yes—maybe no," she told her mother, Mrs. Margaret Smith Brighton, who visited her at Dedham jail immediately after Judge Nelson P. Brown sentenced her to one year in the House of Correction, with parole eligibility placed at six months.

"I don't know whether I will or I won't. It is too early to say now," she continued.

However, there were many other thoughts Norma entertained as she beamed with joy over what the near future holds in store for her.

WOULD GET DIPLOMA

There was the thought of returning to Natick high school to win the coveted diploma which she sacrificed for marriage with Murton Millen, that ended in tragedy.

There was the thought of a job—work at the jail—to busy herself with that the remainin six months might pass quickly and fruitfully.

Love for Murton, her husband, was a thing of the past, forgotten, dead and futile.

All this, the bride confided to her

MUNITIONS IN MORRO CARGO

By International News Service

New York, Sept. 27—Small shipments of gunpowder and cartridges, declared as "sporting goods," were carried to Cuba by the ill-fated liner Morro Castle, Henry E. Caband, first vice-president of the Ward Line, told the Department of Commerce inquiry board today as federal investigation of destruction of the liner moved toward a close.

"Has the Morro Castle carried ammunition to political factions in Cuba?" was asked by Chairman Dickerson Hoover.

"Small shipments of gunpowder, cartridges and so on," replied the witness. "But I don't know they went to any political faction. They were declared as sporting goods."

"Did you believe they were sporting goods?"

"I did."

Caband testified the line never had any difficulties with Cuban political factions.

Obviously interested in Caband's admission that such cargos had been carried, Hoover directed him to furnish the board with the Mor-

Father Slays Crippled Girl in 'Mercy'

Athol, Sept. 27—A crippled girl is dead in a hospital here, a victim, police believe, of a "mercy killing."

The girl, Phyllis Smith, 22, was struck in the head by an axe wielded, police charge, by her father, Clifford B. Smith, 48. He is reported to have been brooding on his daughter's crippled condition and the death of his wife a few months ago.

After hacking his daughter, Smith cut his own throat with a razor and is in a critical condition in Farren Hospital, Montague.

He will be arrested for his daughter's murder, police say, if he recovers from his self-inflicted wound.

The "mercy murder" took place in the Smith home in Allen street. Smith has been unemployed for some time, and was mourning the death of a nephew this week.

These conditions, officials believe, aggravated his brooding and precipitated it into the attempted murder-suicide.

The girl was crippled to the extent that she had to use crutches, and friends say her condition showed no signs of improvement, which grieved her father constantly.

LINDY SEES RANSOM MAN; BAIL $100,000

1—For 10 minutes today Colonel Lindbergh gazed upon Hauptmann, the man indicted for extorting $50,000 ransom from him in the kidnaping of his baby son. Lindbergh was disguised in glasses and cap.

2—J. Edgar Hoover, head of the department of justice, announced that "things look very good" for new arrests in the near future.

3—Hauptmann was arraigned in New York, pleaded not guilty and was held in $100,000 bail.

4—U. S. sought a mysterious passenger aboard a liner at sea as a story told by a vagrant of hearing the kidnaping plotted was exploded in New York.

New York, Sept. 27—Hints of a "surprise arrest" in the Lindbergh case were whispered today by Dr. John F. Condon, intermediary who paid $50,000 to the mysterious "John" in the ransom negotiations. He said:

Little Manfred Hauptmann, oblivious of the shadow threatening to darken his name and his future, laughs and cries and plays and sleeps through these days and nights which are fraught with such terrible significance to his parents. Meanwhile the law moves inexorably to exact its vengeance for the cowardly kidnaping and brutal slaying of that other baby, curly haired Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., long since taken forever from the world of tears and laughter and play. About the living baby's father, Bruno Richard Hauptmann, the chain of kidnap-murder evidence tightens as more ransom money is found, a hidden gun comes to light, alleged extortion note materials are located, and Col. Lindbergh, the father whose first-born son is dead, gives accusing testimony before a New York grand jury after winging his way across the continent. LINDY SLAYING LAID TO BULLET

By International News Service

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 27—Finding of a .25 caliber German automatic pistol in Bruno Hauptmann's garage in New York was regarded with increasing significance today when Dr. Charles H. Mitchell, Mercer County physician, indicated his belief that the hole found in the kidnaped Lindbergh baby's skull probably was caused by a bullet.

Dr. Mitchell, who performed the autopsy shortly after the baby's body was found, flatly rejected the theory of Major Charles H. Schoeffel, deputy superintendt of the New Jersey state police, that the child's skull had been punctured by a stick.

"That is the first I ever heard of it," he said. "And I can say that it would have been impossible."

The baby was dead before it was placed in the shallow grave a few miles from the Lindbergh home and its death was undoubtedly caused by violence, the physician continued, whether by intent or by a fall. A fracture of the skull caused death.

Big Steer Snarls Bridge Traffic

Traffic on the Northern Artery bridge in Somerville was snarled for almost half an hour today when a 1500-pound steer went on a rampage in the shipping yard of the Sturtevant and Haley Beef and Supply Company, at 52 Somerville avenue.

Closing of a gate prevented the enraged animal's escape into the street, but motorists on the bridge stopped their cars to watch him tear up and down the yard.

The animal was finally brought down by a single shot from the rifle of Harry N. Craig, Jr., assistant manager of the plant. He fired from a second-floor window.

By Associated Press

New York, Sept. 27—Here is how the full $50,000 of the Lindbergh ransom is accounted for today by Assistant District-Attorney Edward F. Breslin:

Bruno Hauptmann's present assets	$16,000
Hauptmann's market losses	$ 7,000
Found in Hauptmann garage	$14,590
Ransom bills spent	$ 5,100
Supposed loan to Isadore Fisch	$ 7,500

The total comes to $50,000—with $190 to spare.

New Lindbergh Plot Arrests Pledged

By Universal Service

Washington, Sept. 27—New arrests in the Lindbergh case within a very short time were predicted today by J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Justice Department bureau of investigation.

Hoover declined to state whether the new arrests are persons supposed to be involved in the kidnaping in a major way, or are merely minor aids.

However, when asked whether he believes Bruno Richard Hauptmann had accomplices, Hoover said:

"It is possible he may have done the job alone, but not at all probable."

He would not say exactly how soon he expects the arrests to be made. His only comment in this regard was:

"Things look very bright. That is all I can say."

Meanwhile, Justice Department experts are conducting tests of the home-made ladder, used in the abduction, to determine whether it is strong enough to bear the weight of a man of the same size as Hauptmann.

The ladder, when found, had a broken side-piece. The tests were undertaken when reports had it that the ladder would not support the weight of a 125-pound man, let alone one of the size of Hauptmann, who weighs 170.

New Jersey Governor Plans for Extradition

By Universal Service

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 27 — While the grand jury in Bronx County, N. Y., indicted Bruno Richard Hauptmann on extortion charges, New Jersey authorities moved swiftly to bring the tight-lipped carpenter to trial for the kidnaping and murder of the Lindbergh baby.

David T. Wilentz, attorney general, said, however, that the would would not move to extradite Hauptmann this week.

Governor A. Harry Moore and prosecuting officials met here to make ready the extradition plans, asserting that rapidly mounting evidence left little doubt that New Jersey's case against Hauptmann is "ironclad."

Seven "John Doe" warrants charging murder and kidnaping, have already been brought in the Lindbergh case. Thus, with the necessary evidence, Hauptmann could be technically indicted, New Jersey authorities declared.

Flemington, quaint and sleepy county seat of Hunterdon County will be the scene of the trial and news-center of the world. This was disclosed by Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck, who also indicated the state's belief that the Lindbergh baby was killed at the scene of the kidnaping and not where the body was found in Mercer County, just across the line from Hunterdon.

In addition to mapping plans for Hauptmann's extradition, New Jersey officials also planned elaborate precautions to protect the prisoner from possible mob violence when he enters the state's jurisdiction.

Kidnap Chisel Traced in N. Y.

By International News Service

New York, Sept. 27—Discovery of a duplicate of the steel chisel believed to have been used to pry open the screen on the window of Baby Lindbergh's nursery at Hopewell, N. J., was announced by the Evening Journal today.

The tool, bearing the imprint of the Buck Brothers Manufacturing Company, was located in the stock of the Babbins Hardware Store, White Plains road, the Bronx, where Bruno Richard Hauptmann purchased similar chisels and other carpentry tools prior to the baby's kidnaping.

3 CHILDREN DIE IN HOUSE FIRE

By International News Service

Stratford, Conn., Sept. 27—Three young children lost their lives in a fire which swept the home of William Bush while firemen and spectators stood helplessly by.

The dead are: Albert Bush, 1; Mildred Bush, 2, and Betty Jane Bush, two weeks old.

Bush made three brave efforts to enter the burning home and rescue the infants, succeeding only in recovering the suffocated body of the youngest. A floor gave way before he could reach the others and he received severe face and body burns.

NORMA HAPPY AS JAIL TERM STARTS; MILLEN GRIEVES

NORMA GAY, MILLEN ANGRY AS BRIDE STARTS TERM

With a song in her heart, Norma Millen arose at 6:45 in Dedham jail this morning, beginning the first day of the one-year sentence imposed yesterday for her participation as an accessory after the fact of the Needham robbery and murders.

The threat of 21 years in prison swept aside by the compassionate understanding of Judge Nelson P. Brown, Norma was happier, gayer, than at any time since her arrest. Thanksgiving, new hope and a becoming humility graced her attitude.

Her happiness prompted Jailer Richard D. Shedd to remark:

"You'd think she was in a boarding school."

DECISION WINS PRAISE

Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Dewar said she appeared to be another person than the young woman who waited in apprehension from June until yesterday to learn her fate.

Praise of Judge Brown's disposition of the case against the 19-year-old daughter of the former preacher, Rev. Norman Brighton, began with Norma herself and extended through the ranks of all who have had any connection with the case—that is, all save one.

The single exception was an occupant of one of the pit-cells in the jail, who commented, according to Dewar:

"That's tough."

This, of course, was Norma's husband, Murton Millen, whom she seems destined never to see alive again since the sentence of death hanging over him, his brother, Irving, and Abe Faber, convicted as principals in the Needham crime, is expected to be imposed and executed before her release.

Norma made a good meal of the breakfast fare, cornmeal mush, bread and coffee, then embarked upon the "hard labor" to which she was sentenced, which is nothing more or less than the light duties she performed voluntarily while awaiting sentence.

HOPES TO STUDY

Later in the day she enjoyed two hours' recreation in the jail yard. After supper, before lights are out at 8:30, she will have opportunity to read.

Norma hopes to do enoug' studying to acquire the equivalent of a senior year high school education. She still occupies the same cell on the third tier of the north wing, several hundred feet removed from the three men in the pit.

Norma expressed her desire to continue studying to her mother. Mrs. Brighton visited her daughter immediately after sentence had been pronounced. Norma had just been given her supper when her mother entered the jail.

Neglecting her meal, she ran to her mother and put both arms around her and they talked for a few moments. Throughout the brief visit, Norma laughed and gesticulated with both hands.

After the visit, Mrs. Brighton said:

"Norma is so happy. She said 'Judge Brown was perfectly swell. Mother, didn't he give me a swell break?'

"THROUGH WITH MURT"

"She is all through with Murt and doesn't want to see him again. The wedding ring is just a souvenir of a nightmare in her young life.

"Norma is so pleased with the verdict that she plans to write a letter to Judge Brown, thanking him for his kindness to her."

Norma Unfolds New Hope for Bridal to Mother

By RUTH MUGGLEBY

mother as together they sat in the jail rotunda, locked in each other's arms, happy, and cheerful, their tears not of sadness but of joyful humility.

The past was the past and today Norma, the country girl who found city lights blurred and treacherous, thought only of the future—the near future that holds life, liberty and an appreciable pursuit after happiness.

AMONG HER SOUVENIRS

The wedding ring, the slim, platinum symbol of her union with the murderer, was no longer on her hand.

"It is just a souvenir now," she told her mother. "A pretty expensive souvenir to always remind me of an almost totally scarred life."

Upon her return to Dedham jail, Norma first called for something to eat.

Her mother, who followed her back to jail from the courthouse sent out for doughnuts, jelly tarts and fruit for her daughter, and the 19-year-old girl munched as she talked.

"I am so happy, mother," she said, "I could sing. Wasn't that great? Isn't Judge Brown a wonderful man? Oh, I couldn't believe it when I heard the sentence. I was so afraid he would send me to Sherborn and I didn't want to go there.

"I worried so much for fear he would send me there. But now I am still here and soon I will be out—out again a free human being . . . oh, it is too wonderful . . .

"I will be the best prisoner they ever had here. I'll do just what I am supposed to do. They won't be able to find any fault with me, so when six months are up and I can be paroled they will acknowledge my good behavior and let me out . . ."

With the well wishes of a cheering throng ringing in her ears over the short course back to the jail, Norman returned to her cell a much happier person than when she left.

HUGGED HER FATHER

She changed her dress into the white prison garb and doffed the high-heeled black patent leather pumps for soft-soled noiseless making slippers.

She confided the glad tidings to her women friends in the jail and they rejoiced with her.

In the courtroom she had hugged and kissed her father, the former Rev. Norman Brighton of Natick, smiling her prettiest as she conveyed her pleasure of the light sentence to him.

"Daddy, daddy, "she repeated," 'it is wonderful . . . oh, it is wonderful . . . soon we'll be together again . . . soon . . ."

Rev. Brighton did not visit his daughter at the jail, but promised to see her another day. The visit was taken up by her mother.

Mrs. Brighton revealed that Norma, Murton's bride, had no intention of bidding him any fond adieus or caressing farewells.

"When Murton leaves the jail," said Norma's mother, 'he will leave it without any good-bye from Norma. She has no feeling for him any more. Her love for him has died. It died during the lonely nights she had to spend in jail.

"She told me the first thing she wants to do is write Judge Brown a letter thanking him. Then she wants to write her sister Thelma, a letter, telling her of the outcome.

"Finally, she wants to plan for the work she is to do in jail. On Thursdays and Fridays, she will help with the washing and cleaning. On the other days, she will do ironing and cooking. In this way she will be able to pass the days with occupation and satisfaction.

TO TAKE COURSE

"She told me she is interested in taking the state extension course for high school, as she is very anxious to go back to school and get the diploma she sacrificed for her marriage to Murton.

"Norma is anxious now only to become a useful citizen to society, to prove her worth to a kind man who believes in her.

"I expected a light sentence for her. I think it was very fair and meted out as wonderful protection for her. With only six months actually. Norma has her whole life ahead of her. I know my little girl will make the most of the future."

Norma Serious and Downcast as Crowds See Her After Sentence

Her head bowed and her eyes half closed, Norma Brighton Millen was led back to Dedham jail yesterday after she heard Judge Nelson Brown sentence her to another year in prison. And, with a chance of being freed in six months, Norma is looking to the future and admitted there was a "50-50" chance that she would marry again. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

In a somber mood, Norma, in center, walks unseeingly through the pressing crowds at Dedham courthouse, escorted by a court officer and a matron of the jail. She had just heard Judge Nelson Brown sentence her to one year's imprisonment in the house of correction as accessory after the fact in Needham bank robbery and slayings.

COUPLE HUNTED IN SLAYING OF DETROIT GIRL

By Associated Press

Detroit, Sept. 27—A slender trap drummer and his red-haired wife were sought today for questioning about the slaying of 11-year-old Lillian Gallaher whose body was found in a trunk in their apartment here Wednesday.

The objects of the search were M. W. Goodrich, 26, and his wife, Florence, whose apartment was six blocks from the Gallaher home from which Lillian disappeared last Thursday. They were believed hiding in Detroit.

Investigation established only a few facts: That the Gallagher girl was attacked, beaten and strangled to death at elast three days ago, that the Goodriches apparently left their apartment last Saturday and that Goodrich had been detained in an Ohio asylum for molesting a 13-year-old girl in 1931.

Lost Vermont Girl Sought in Woods

(By Associated Press)

Bennington, Vt., Sept. 27—A search to the south of Benington by CCC men and forest rangers had failed to disclose any trace of 16-year-old Katherine Kearns, missing from her home here for more than two weeks, officials said today.

U. S. Agents Grill Man on Lost Girl

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 27—Attention of federal agents working on the disappearance case of six-year-old Dorothy Distelhurst was centered today on a 30-year-old transient held at Kingsport, Tenn.

By Associated Press

Hooper, Neb., Sept. 27—Investigators today puzzled over what they believed was a murder mystery, which developed with the discovery of the body of a child, apparently dismembered with a saw.

Nazis Ban Gift to Jewish Girl

Berlin, Sept. 27—An extreme interpretation of rules for Nazis' conduct in their relations with Jews has come to light from Berlin's best known department store, Wertheim's, on the Leipziger Platz.

A Nazi member of the workers' council of confidence severely criticized some Gentile clerks for giving flowers to a Jewish clerk on her birthday.

He insisted a recent order by Rudolf Hess, minister without portfolio, means that all save strickly business contact by Gentile employes with Jewish ones must be abandoned. He ordered the employes to refrain from contact with Jews, even after business hours.

5-and-10 Girl Passes Bar

From the counter of a five-and-ten cent store to the Massachusetts bar is the progress made by a young Lynn girl.

Rose Kulchinsky of Vine street, Lynn, worked in the Lynn five-and-ten days while studying law nights at Portia Law school. She passed the bar examinations with a high grade, according to results just revealed.

Among the others to pass the bar exams was William J. Walsh, Jr., of Allston, a nephey of Senator David I. Walsh. He is the sixth member of the senator's family to enter the legal profession.

Billy Butts Sailed on Missing Yacht

Hollywood, Sept. 27 (US)—Billy Butts, 14, a screen actor, is aboard the missing yacht Nataimba, it was revealed here. The Nataimba, a participant in the Los Angeles-to-Honolulu yacht race, is unreported since leaving Hilo, T. H., for Los Angeles harbor on August 21.

MACHINE GUN GANG GETS $3000 IN 'EL' HOLDUP

ors, who already had picked up cas and checks at Forest Hills termina Green street station and Egleston square station, parked their armored car in front of 130 Dudle street, just beyond the incline of th terminal.

Back of the armored car, on th other side of the incline it wa learned later, stood a small bl sedan, and this is believed to hav been the bandit car.

McLeod, McGowan and McLea had been to the Elevated offic in the terminal and were back a their car, about to get in, wh two men who had moved up fro the direction of Warren street a three who had appeared from u der the El structure in Washin ton street, surrounded the c lectors.

DISARM COLLECTORS

"Give up those guns and don make any outcry," one of th bandits ordered as their machi guns and sawed-off shotgu came into play.

Leaving the armored car, bandits fled for their own machine, whirled around in Dudley street and sped away up Warren street in the direction of Grove Hall.

McLeod, watching out of the corner of an eye while he lay in the street, saw the car vanish, leaped to his feet and ran into a lunch room only 15 yards away, where 10 men were breakfasting. He shouted that there had been a holdup and from there telephoned police.

NONE WORE MASK

Later today the collectors were at police headquarters, looking over pictures in the rogues' gallery and confident, they said, that they could identify some of the bandits, as none wore a mask.

Rheaume told police that when he left the terminal he saw the tail end of the holdup, with his fellow-workers still lying in the street.

"I didn't know what to do," he said. "I was all excited and it came to me that there was a holdup."

PRODDED BY GUN

"I was getting into the wagon (the car) when I felt something stick in my back. I looked around and saw a man with a machine gun. I tried to reach for my gun and was told if I made another move I would be shot.

"Johnnie McGowan was just behind me, and when I looked over toward him I saw a man with a gun at his back. I couldn't see Al McLean, because McLean was the third man.

"The next thing I heard was: 'Give up those guns and don't make any outcry.' I started again to reach for my gun, but was hit on the arm.

"We were marched toward Washington street, and en route I could feel my gun being taken out of my holster. The man with the gun, which was either a shotgun or a machine gun, then said, 'You fellows lie down on your stomachs and do it quick.'

"There was nothing else to do but follow orders, because I knew those fellows meant business. We lay down on our stomachs fully five minutes. I finally got courage to look up and I saw a blue sedan, which I think was a new Ford, with several men in it. I think they were the bandits.

"I then got to my feet and told the other fellows, 'Let's get up quick. I guess the coast is clear.'"

Girl Still Missing

Bennington, Vt., Sept. 27—A second fruitless search in the mountains near Lake Hancock was made by CCC men for Katherine Kearns, 16-year-old Bennington High School junior, missing for two weeks.

DeWolf Spurns Agriculture Post

DeWitt C. DeWolf, secretary to Governor Ely, today declared that he had no desire to be State Commissioner of Agriculture. He expressed his view in answer to reports that he was slated for that job.

"The Governor has not spoken to me about such a position and I certainly have no desire for it," D'eWolf said. "If the Governor asked me to sweep the corridors, I would do it. But really I don't care to be Commissioner of Agriculture."

Judge Bragna Assumes Post

In a jammed courtroom of Pemberton suaqre courthouse, Judge Vincent Brogna, recently appointed to the superior court bench by Governor Ely, was inducted into office today.

Members of his family, relatives, friends, other judges and many attorneys filled the room as Chief Jdstice Walter Perley Hall, presiding at the ceremony.

Clerk Colville read the commission, while Judge Brogna's wife, three children and six sisters smiled up at him.

Labor to Endorse Thirty-Hour Week

San Francisco, Sept. 27 (AP)—Overwhelming approval of the six-hour, five-day work week by the American Federation of Labor at its annual convention was predicted today by Frank Morrison, veteran secretary of the organization.

Morrison, here for the convention which opens Monday, said he was informed that delegates from practically all unions affiliated with the federation favor the 30-hour week of five days.

TODAY

lieves that "everyone will be glad."

The Blue Eagle has lost its boss and will miss him. General Johnson is in retirement, somebody else will tell business men how to run their business, cut down hours of work and working days in the week, and perhaps working weeks and months in the year.

It must be a great relief to General Johnson, as, highly praised by the President, he leaves the Blue Eagle, with his oddly matched feet, to fly alone.

General Johnson will be remembered by reporters as one that left the English language richer than he found it. He invented "cracking down," "chisellers," etc., and no old "fee fi fo fum" giant ever frightened a little boy more than the NRA giant Johnson frightened the business man.

President Roosevelt's predecessor, Theodore Roosevelt, had to invent his own powerful expressions like "weazle words," "malefactors of great wealth," etc.

President F. D. Roosevelt finds a man able to do it for him.

Two hundred and fifty thousand looked on yesterday while Queen Mary, of England, christened the new giant Cunard passenger ship that cost forty million dollars.

King George, who was there, too, knows what ships mean to a country too small to support its population.

This new giant, 1018 feet long, biggest ship on the ocean, has 73,000 tonnage, nearly double that of Leviathan. How fast the new boat, named Queen Mary, will go is not known. A single one of her numerous lifeboats, propelled by Diesel engines managed by one man, lowered in a few seconds, will carry more persons than were carried by the first Cunard steamer Britannia, when she first came to New York in 1840. The Queen Mary, with sufficient electrical energy to take care of a city of 150,000 people, is a real boat.

Now watch France, Mussolini and Hitler try to beat it.

This country will not try because we are too busy trying to keep the richest nation in the world from going to the poorhouse.

Canada's climate, or something, tends toward increase of population. Bridgetown, Nova Scotia, tells of three sisters that have given birth to 56 children. Mrs. Vadito has had 21, Mrs. Wells Rynhard 19, their sister, Mrs. Sabine, 16. These figures, plus the Dionne quintuplets, suggest that Canada's population might pass that of the United States before long, especially as our families become smaller and smaller.

In New York there are no children at all in the greatest number of families; only one child in the next largest family class, and two in the next. Many expensive blocks with fine houses have no children.

From an exhibit in the Chicago Exposition some misguided person stole an aluminum capsule containing nine milligrams of radium, a tiny speck worth $1000, useless to the thief.

Police hunt the criminal, not only to recover the radium, but also to save the foolish thief's life. If he should open the capsule, he would risk "death or disfigurement," and carrying it around with him would be fatal.

It used to be thought, among pious ancestors, that carrying a guilty secret around in your conscience was fatal.

PALMER TO HEAD NEW HAVEN

By Associated Press

New York, Sept. 27—Dow Jones & Co. says that according to advices from New England, Howard S. Palmer is believed to be the choice of the directors of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad to succeed John J. Pelley as president.

Palmer is at present vice-president in charge of finances of the New Haven. Pelley has resigned to become persident of the new Association of American Railroads.

Previously, gossip in railroad quarters in New York mentioned as possible successor to Pelley the names of Edward S. French, president of the Boston & Maine, and Walter S. Franklin, vice-president of the Pennsylvania.

ROMANCE . . . PLEASURE ALWAYS TWO FEET AWAY

For so many women, the things they want, are always two feet away.

Their own two feet!

Foot troubles make them kill-joys . . . on parties . . . at dances . . . on walks.

They are too tired, too fatigued to have a good time themselves. They spoil the pleasure of their escorts, too . . . and soon they are no longer invited.

Ordinary, unscientific, poorly-fitted shoes are robbing them of active social life.

And most foot troubles are so easily eliminated. William J. Walsh, Boston's comfort shoe expert, has shown the way for thousands.

His prescription is simply this: Wear Nature's own last and let the feet function as Nature intended. Which is another way of saying wear Arch Preserver Shoes.

For Arch Preserver Shoes provide the same walking base that the bare foot of the savage enjoys on level ground. They give normal natural support to the longitudinal arch and to the forward arch of the foot.

There is no straining of muscles and ligaments, no squeezing and rasping of nerves, no crowding of toes and blood vessels.

To the eye, an Arch Preserver Shoe is just a beautiful shoe. To the foot, it is a comfort and a joy.

Switch to Arch Preserver Shoes today.

Good News travels fast!

"So You've Discovered That Brand New, Grand New Taste, Too!"

No MATTER how many different kinds of ale you have experimented with, discover Blue Ribbon Genuine Ale* today. You'll agree it brings you a new kind of taste plus. For Blue Ribbon Ale is new in flavor—new in refreshment value—new in its extra delicious palatability and in the way it satisfies that jaded appetite of yours. Yet it is strong, true-flavored, genuine ale with every traditional ale characteristic happily retained. Blue Ribbon Genuine Ale introduces a brand new conception of how good ale can be! Try it today!

WHAT ALE IS: Ale and beer differ in formula, process, character, and strength—ale being stronger. The most important process difference is in the yeast and kind of fermentation.

Requiring different yeast and different treatment, the making of ale and beer should be carefully separated. So-called ales, made in the same fermenting and storage rooms with beer, are usually neither true ale nor true beer, but "crossbreeds."

Made in a plant built for that purpose, Blue Ribbon is Genuine Ale—no half way product, no crossbreed—real ale with the tang, bouquet, vigor, that ale should have.

There's a Brand New Grand New Taste in Town!

MAINE HEIRESS, YOUTH DIE IN AUTO CRASH

Skowhegan, Me., Sept. 27—Gertrude Page, 17, daughter of Blyn Page, wealthy local banker, and her escort were burned to death today when their automobile skidded off a slippery road near Lakewood, plunged over an embankment and burst into flames.

The dead youth is Carmen Gardner, 18, member of a prominent Lakewood family.

Another passenger, Miss Eleanor Young, 17, daughter of Dr. George E. Young of Skowhegan, 17, was thrown clear of the machine and escaped with severe injuries.

Miss Page is the youngest daughter of the banker, who was defeated in June in the Republican primaries for governor of Maine.

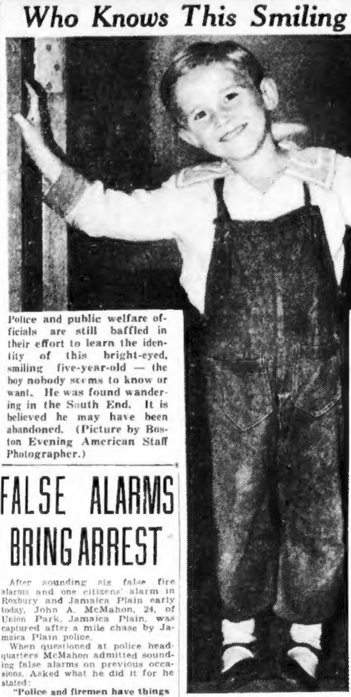
Who Knows This Smiling Mystery Boy?



Police and public welfare officials are still baffled in their effort to learn the identity of this bright-eyed, smiling five-year-old — the boy nobody seems to know or want. He was found wandering in the South End. It is believed he may have been abandoned. (Picture by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

FALSE ALARMS BRING ARREST

After sounding six false fire alarms and one citizens' alarm in Roxbury and Jamaica Plain early today, John A. McMahon, 24, of Union Park, Jamaica Plain, was captured after a mile chase by Jamaica Plain police.

When questioned at police headquarters McMahon admitted sounding false alarms on previous occasions. Asked what he did it for he stated:

"Police and firemen have things easy. I like to see them do a little work, especially at night."

He will be arraigned in Roxbury court after appearing in a police lineup.

War Opened on Speeders

On orders of the selectmen, Arlington police have started a drive on speeders, the result of a number of accidents recently along Massachusetts avenue.

Auto Thefts Charged

After the recovery of two autos and a number of parts by police, George Krondotis, 30, of Vernon street, and Alexander Zion, 30, of Spring street, both Bridgewater, faced a charge of larceny in Brockton district court today.

Haverhill Funds Short

Haverhill, Sept. 27—With no funds in the welfare department, here, employees of that department together with recipients of relief were without checks today.

MYSTERY BOY, 5, GETS EAR TEST

Tests for deafness were to be made today at the Horace Mann school for the deaf upon the unidentified 5-year-old boy found near the Holy Cross Cathedral last Sunday.

The boy, who is being held at the Chardon street home, has been unabel to give his name or address.

Claims for the boy by Mrs. Helen Crosby of Lynde street, West End, were refuted when police learned that her son, Lois Melvin DeMoss, whom she believed the child might be, was safe at the home of his grandparents in St. Mary's, Ohio.

Girl to Recover

Attaches at City Hospital today expressed belief that Miss Margaret Johnson, 27, of Alexander street, Dorchester, who police say tried to end her life by drinking poison, will recover. She told authorities that she was despondent because she could not secure employment.

Prince George 'Proposed,' Princess Reveals

By MATHEW H. HALTON

(Copyright, 1934, by Star Newspaper Service and International News Service.)

London, Sept. 27—Princess Marina, bright-eyed daughter of Greece and bride of England, stood on the steps of York house, where the Prince of Wales lives, and puckered her brow.

"I didn't think," said Princess Marina, "that any one person could be so happy as I am. And what more could I say than that?"

"Madam," I said, saying Madam because you can't address a princess as princess and because you can't go round calling people 'your highness'," "Madam, you could say a lot more than that if you cared. People are fond of saying that princes and princesses live cold and formal lives, and that to be really happy young lovers must live in a cottage. Now if I could get you to say something on that subject, thousands of people would read it with beaming eyes."

"Oh, dear," said the beautiful princess, who really is a beautiful princess, and thus sets a record for al ltime. "I thought it was the other way 'round. I mean, I thought people were fond of believing that all princes and princesses lived golden, happy lives, when the truth is that some of them live very dull lives indeed. But I know I am very happy, and why shouldn't I be?"

I looked into the wonderful gold-green eyes of the princess and asked her if she was going to like England. "But, of course," she declared ecstatically.

"Madam," I said, "do princesses fall in love and get engaged like other people; or is it all done for them by diplomats and statesmen?"

The fair-haired and pretty lady pulled down her hat a little—the hat which is now being imitated by half of the world—and laughed.

"I can tell you that," she said. "Our engagement was more unexpected than you can imagine. I saw George in London six months ago, and we were just friends. Then he came to see us at Bled and even that was a surprise, for we didn't know he was coming. An dthen, after he had been with us two weeks, he proposed to me. That is the whole of our little story."

ROOSEVELT AIR TALK SUNDAY

By Universal Service

Washington, Sept. 27—President Roosevelt will go on the air Sunday night in another "Fireside" broadcast to give the country a reassuring picture of economic conditions under the New Deal.

The White House announced the speech will be broadcast from 10 to 10:30 p. m. E. S. T., on both National radio hook-ups.

LINDBERGH, IN DISGUISE, WATCHES HAUPTMANN FOR 10 MINUTES; SUSPECT IS HELD IN $100,000 BAIL

pathies, and Bruno Richard Hauptmann, the man held in connection with the crime.

Between them passed no words—not even a flicker of recognition. It was a meeting poignant in its silent intensity and drama, and the thoughts that crossed the minds of these two widely-separated figures were blanketed in the secrecy of their own muteness.

Hauptmann was not shackled during the "line-up." Twenty police stood near, a guard for Lindbergh, who did not speak to the prisoner and showed no visible emotion.

It was shortly before Hauptmann was haled into court for arraignment on the extortion charges levelled against him that the encounter occurred, in which he was held later in $100,000 bail.

And while no one present at the meeting or aware of its details would speak at all freely, it was learned that it was brought about at Colonel Lindbergh's request.

He expressed a wish to see and confront the man accused of participation in the crime which robbed him of his first-born. But if he expected a demonstration by the stolid, inhumanly indifferent suspect, he was doomed to disappointment.

Disguised and Under 20 Police Guns

Hauptmann did not even give so much as a sign that he had recognized the man upon whom he stands accused of wreaking a crime that has shocked the world.

The flier was escorted by twenty policemen attached to the Bronx district-attorney's staff.

Colonel Lindbergh made an unnoticed entrance into the district-attorney's office. He was whisked up to the sixth floor of the building in a private elevator and wore by way of disguise, a pair of horn-rimmed glasses and a cap.

Foley, describing the meeting after the arraignment, said that the prisoner was not aware that Lindbergh was viewing him, and added that the outcome of the flier's visit would not be disclosed. He said:

"Colonel Lindbergh was met by several of my staff early this morning in New Jersey and was driven to the county court building.

"He was taken by private elevator to my office. When he came in he wore horn-rimmed glasses and a cap. He was one of a line of detectives. The prisoner never knew he was Lindbergh."

Hauptmann was later arraigned in Bronx County court on the extortion indictment and pleaded not guilty, his bail being fixed at $100,000.

Hauptmann looked weary and needed a shave when he was taken into the courtroom. The kidnaper suspect wore the same gray suit he had on when arrested. Silence fell across the courtroom as the clerk of court announced:

"Arraignment of Richard Hauptmann on a bench warrant charging extortion."

Bail of Only $5000 Sought by Hauptmann

As Hauptmann stood there before the bar of justice the clerk continued:

"Richard Hauptmann, otherwise known as Bruno Richard Hauptmann, otherwise known as Karl Pellmeier, you are arraigned on an indictment by the people charging you with extortion. How do you plead?"

The prisoner was silent.

His attorney, James M. Fawcett, spoke up:

"The defendant pleads not guilty."

Addressing Judge Patterson, Attorney Fawcett said:

"Your Honor, I ask that bond for this defendant be set in the sum of $5000. He had no previous record and is indicted only on a felony charge of extortion. I feel a $5000 bond would be just. He has no money and cannot furnish bond in higher amount."

District Attorney Foley said:

"We are not asking that this man be held without bail in injustice to him or in violation of his constitutional rights. But we are investigating another charge more serious than the one now against him."

Foley then asked Judge Patterson to fix Hauptmann's bail at the high figure of $100,000. Foley added:

"For the purpose of the record, we ask bail in the sum of $100,000 and I do not feel this is unreasonable in view of our practice and custom here. I do not feel it is a denial of the defendant's rights."

Judge Patterson said:

"This defendant is an alien and I feel the bail asked by the district attorney is reasonable. It will therefore be fixed in the sum of $100,000.

The district attorney then said that for the purpose of the record it could be noted that he "consented with defense Attorney Fawcett that a plea of not guilty be entered for the defendant."

A battery of movie photographers and other cameramen, a score or more reporters and many policemen and detectives were crowded into the courtroom, huddled close to where the cold-eyed defendant stood.

About 200 spectators sat back of a railing and jammed the aisles.

After Judge Patterson had fixed Hauptmann's bail at $100,000, Attorney Fawcett made a formal motion to reduce the bond to $5000.

Foley Will Fight $100,000 Freedom

After the proceedings newspapermen asked the district-attorney what he would do if Hauptmann raised the $100,000 bail. Foley replied:

"I would immediately go before the court and ask that the bail be increased."

It was at this juncture that Foley unexpectedly announced that Colonel Lindbergh had confronted Hauptmann.

Lindbergh had come to see the prisoner on his own volition. The famous flyer wore the horn-rimmed spectacles as he entered the district attorney's office to see the man suspected of participation in the kidnaping of his baby.

Immediately after the arraignment, Hauptmann was taken back to his cell in the Bronx county jail. In spite of all the incriminating evidence with which the authorities had confronted him, he still remained adamant and a hard prisoner to deal with. He was as cool and collected as ever.

Speedy Trial Sure For Ransom Hider

After the arraignment had been concluded, Judge Patterson said that the next hearing date would be determined by the district attorney, "who has promised that the case will be put on as speedily as the interest of justice allows." Judge Patterson said:

"Unless the defense attorney presents some valid reason for delay, the trial will go on at the time designated by the district attorney without further reference to the court.

"I imagine the case will come before Judge James M. Barrett, senior county judge.

"Dismissal of the case in the district (Magistrate's) Court will be a mere formality next Monday and Hauptmann may or may not appear. The function of the District Court is to hold for the grand jury or dismiss."

Judge Patterson added that the arraignment today automatically scrapped the short affidavit on which Hauptmann had been held.

Fawcett later announced that he would go into Bronx County Court next week with two motions. One will be to dismiss the indictment on the grounds the facts are insufficient to sustain the charges, and the second will be for an inspection of the grand jury minutes.

Fawcett said that Hauptmann had no chance of raising the $100,000 bail. The defense counsel refused to state whether he would seek a habeas corpus writ or take any other legal steps to obtain Hauptmann's release.

The police, meanwhile, were feverishly active trying to "mop up" the case.

New Ransom Passer Sought by Police

A close friend of Hauptmann—a man reported to have passed some of the Lindbergh ransom money—assumed the role of a new suspect.

Intimation that this man's arrest might come at any time was given out. The man is being constantly shadowed by the police.

Members of this new suspect's family are also being watched. Some of the authorities gave consideration to the theory that he—instead of Hauptmann—actually received the $50,000 ransom from Dr. John F. ("Jafsie") Condon, Lindbergh intermediary, on the night of April 2, 1932, at St. Raymond's cemetery.

The new suspect became significant today in the minds of some police in view of the testimony Colonel Lindbergh gave yesterday before the Bronx grand jury which indicted Hauptmann.

It was reported that Lindbergh told the grand jury that the mysterious "John" had an accomplice on the night the money was paid over by "Jafsie" in the cemetery.

The accomplice is said to have worn a handkerchief over his face.

The close friend of Hauptmann (the new suspect) has been questioned by the police—but only briefly—so that he would not become alarmed or suspicious.

He is represented to be of Hauptmann's build, of German descent and familiar with the haunts of Dr. Condon.

Especially significant—he was closely associated with Hauptmann, socially, at the time of the kidnaping.

Hauptmann's attorney, Fawcett, disclosed today that he had received three letters with reference to the Lindbergh case and Hauptmann's connection with it. One of the communications—from Rochester N. Y.—was sympathetic toward the prisoner, he said. The other two were from New York City and Asbury Park, N. J. All three letters were anonymous.

The Rochester communication, according to Fawcett, said:

"It is up to you (Fawcett). He (supposed meaning Hauptmann) was hired by us. We are unknown to him. Dead men tell no tales."

The letter, addressed to Fawcett, was roughly printed.

The Asbury Park communication was full of underscored words containing the sentence, Fawcett said, "Watch every step you take!"

Fawcett attributed the communications to "cranks" and said he would not investigate them.

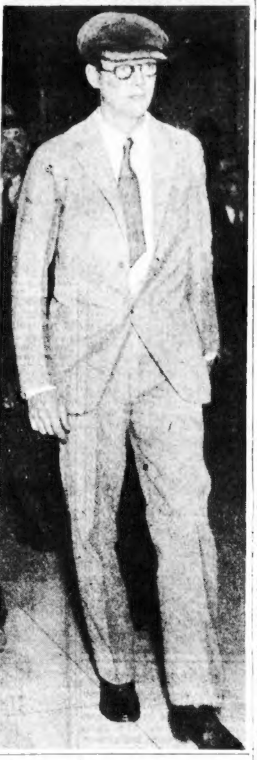
A decision is expected soon on whether to try Hauptmann for extortion in the Bronx or to extradite him to New Jersey for trial on charges of kidnaping and murder. If he is taken to New Jersey, he faces life imprisonment or death.

One bubble of hope in the search for Hauptmann accomplices, not only in the ransom dealings, but the actual kidnaping and killing of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was exploded today.

A shabby vagrant, arrested last night for soliciting alms in a park, conjured up a picture of plotters conniving the kidnaping in a New Jersey speakeasy.

For a time police attached importance to the story, announcing that they might have an "important break" within 24 hours, but after questioning the man through the night, they said today his story "did not hold water."

Lindy Becomes Sherlock



Disguised with horn rimmed glasses and an old cap in real Sherlock Holmes fashion, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh attended the grand jury hearing in the office of District Attorney Foley in the Bronx. This picture of Lindbergh is the artist's conception of how he looked in his disguise. Because he invariably is seen without any kind of a hat, he entered and left the office with only a few persons realizing who he was. The famous flier is under constant police guard after his flight from the Pacific coast to face Bruno Hauptmann, suspected of kidnaping his son. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

IF YOU WERE THE WIFE OF KIDNAPER—WHAT THEN?

Would you as a wife, protect your mate if overwhelming evidence indicated he was guilty of a heinous crime . . . say the ruthless murder of a little child? If, in addition, that man demanded and collected money from the grief-stricken parents on the promise that he would return the child?

This thought is prompted by the natural interest in what is going on in the mind of Mrs. Anna Hauptmann, whose husband is under arrest, charged with the kidnaping and murder of little baby Lindbergh and with extortion of blood money from the baby's father, Colonel Charles Lindbergh.

There is no indication that Mrs. Hauptmann has withheld any information from the proper authorties. On the contrary, according to all reports, she has disclosed everything and anything she knew bearing upon the investigation.

The question confronting a wife in this position has many phases. For instance, decision is not wholly based on the matter of loyalty . . . of a wife's duty to her mate. It rests on the bed rock basis of humanity's fundamental law . . . the instinct of self-preservation.

Would a wife's self-preservation best be served by telling the truth, even though that truth revealed her husband's guilt of a horrible crime?

If a wife in such a position had a child, or children, would she be a better mother by protecting their father by withholding evidence of his guilt, or by honestly giving the authorities what information she might possess?

$10.00 will be paid for the winning letter on this subject—$5.00 for the letter considered second best, and $1.00 each for the five next most interesting letters.

MR. PICKWICK Tries The "Blind-Fold" Test

*"It's no use, ladies and gentlemen, I give up. It is impossible to tell which is the Pickwick Draught from the tap and which is the Pickwick Draught from the bottle."

*N. B. Of course he can't tell. The test isn't quite fair to Mr. Pickwick because there is no difference! Bottled Pickwick is simply Pickwick Draught Ale, bottled just as it comes from the aging vats! It has the same delectable flavor—rich and tangy, the same hoppy aroma, the same full and satisfying body. And why not—it's the same Ale! Try the "blind-fold test" yourself and see what Mr. Pickwick was up against. Or better, try some Pickwick Ale! You'll say "Now that's what I call ale!"

NEW DEAL HIT AS G. O. P. OPENS N. Y. SESSIONS

By International News Service

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 27 — Manned by old guard chiefs, the Republican steamroller started out today to crush the opposition to the candidacy of Robert Moses for governor, and then jolt W. Kingsland Macy out of the State chairmanship.

The Republican state convention got under way with the old guard in complete control of the organization machinery.

After representative Clarence E. Hancock of Syracuse, the old guard leaders proceeded to elect Senator oe R. Hanley of Wyoming, as premanent chairman, and to draft a platform in which the New Deal will be assailed.

The first blast came in a smashing attack on the New Deal by Representative Hancock, who charged that it is strangling business, fostering monopolies, strikes, hatred and bloodshed, and is leading America int o"universal ruin."

"FOLLOWING HITLER"

Accepting the challenge of the Democrats to make the New Deal the chief issue in the forthcoming state campaign, Hancock asserted that President Roosevelt and Postmaster-General James A. Farley as head of the Democratic party are foloiwing in the footsteps of Hitler and Mussolini in attempting to establish one all-powerful party in the country.

Hancock stratled the convention with the blunt charge that the national Democratic leaders are using federal relief funds for political advantage and private graft.

SURE OF MOSES

The forces backing Moses for the gubernatorial nomination scoffed at the claims of his two leading rivals, Mayor Rolland B. Marvin of Syracuse, and George U. Harvey of Queens, that they would be able to block his nomination on the first ballot at the closing session tomorrow.

Meanwhile, strong pressure was being brought to bear on Macy to withdraw ex-Judge Samuel Seabury, independent Democrat, as a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination.

Macy flatly rejected all such overtures, and insisted that the fight to have Seabury head the state ticket would be carried to the convention floor.

Maryland Republicans Promise Roosevelt Aid

Baltimore, Sept. 27 (AP)—A platform promising closer cooperation with President Roosevelt's emergency program than has been given by Governor Richie, was offered to the Republican State convention when it assembled here today.

The platform was endorsed in its entirety by Harry W. Nice, the Republicans c'hoice for governor of Maryland. Although subject to change by the convention, it was expected to be accepted substantially as written.

The platform contained a frank apeal for the votes of Maryland Democrats. Not only did the Republican leaders promise to work with the Democratic national administration—in so far as their judgment and the welfare of the State would allow—but also stated at the outset.

"Our fight is not against the Democratic party but against the State Democratic machine."

Michigan Republicans Hear New Deal Blast

Flint, Mich., Sept. 27 (AP)—U. S. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg told the Republican State convention here today that Republicans confront "an opposition with the greatest campaign chest in all political history—to wit, the Treasury of the United States."

"We confront," he said, "an opposition which, with the greatest army of press agents ever hired at public expense, adroitly covers up its greater errors by well-managed emphasis upon the lesser achievements with which it is rightly credited and which it would be absurd to deny."

Senator Vandenberg said:

"The battle with depression is less favorable with America today than with most of our foreign neighbors who have played less bravely with patent medicines," and added: "We create more problems than we solve. There are more unemployed than ever. We are living on our own fat—and the fat is running lean."

"Private business," said Senator Vandenberg, "must resume; there is no other way. It cannot resume—it cannot create jobs for workers and consumers for farm products—in the face of handicaps which I have sketched."

2 Arrests Bare Auto Theft Ring

Brockton, Sept. 27—At least a dozen more arrests in what police believe is a highly organized automobile larceny ring was predicted by officials here today, following the arraignment of two men on charges of stealing automobiles.

Alexander Zion, 22, and George Kondreski, 28, both of Bridgewater, pleaded not guilty to charges of stealing automobiles and mutilating engine numbers.

MOTHER KEEPS VIGIL AT CRIB AS HAUPTMANN OPENS FIGHT

Constantly at the side of her son, Manfred, Mrs. Hauptmann, wife of the carpenter held in the Lindbergh kidnaping, does her best to entertain the baby while Hauptmann fights for liberty. Threatening letters, received at the Hauptmann home against the baby as "revenge," keep the mother on the alert. This movette photograph, made by Hearst Metrotone News, shows how the mother and baby spend their time at their new home with a close relative.

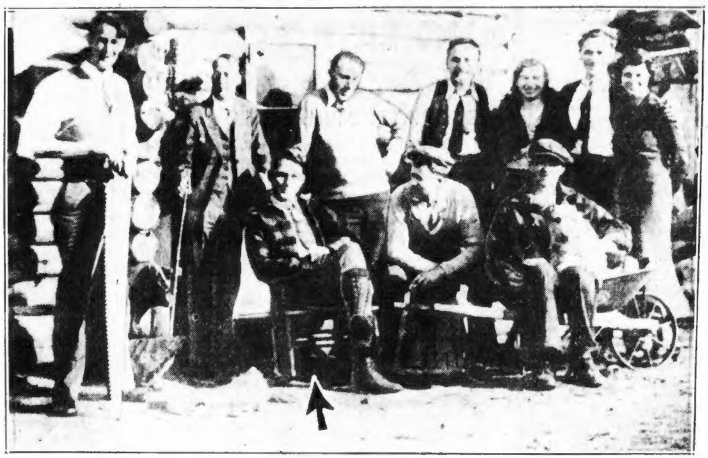
It is on handwriting comparisons, such as the above, that experts base their assertions that Bruno Hauptmann wrote all the Lindbergh ransom notes. At the right are known specimens of his hand and on the left are excerpts from the ransom notes. In no case, experts say, does the writing of two persons have eight similar characteristics as do these.



HAUPTMANN AND HIS FRIENDS—From the album of Bruno Hauptmann we see him on one of his many visits to the cabin he helped build near Jackson's Mill, N. J. With the Lindbergh kidnap suspect are Henry Lampe, with dog, and Hans Kloppenburg (with saw), and other friends. Kloppenburg is another Bronx Carpenter, the same as Hauptmann. Arrow points to Hauptmann, (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

CHECKING—Charles A. Attel, Jr., Justice Department handwriting expert, studying examples of Bruno Hauptmann's writing beside that of the Lindbergh ransom notes, compares their similarity and thus forges another link in the state's chain of evidence against Hauptmann. The German carpenter has been indicted in the Bronx on a charge of extortion,

A veritable battalion of cameramen awaited Colonel Lindbergh when he completed his testimony before the grand jury in the Bronx where he faced Hauptmann for the first time

CURLEY CALLS FOR 100,000 NEW VOTERS

By FRANK REILLY

Swinging into action at his campaign headquarters in Youngs Hotel, former Mayor James M. Curley, Democratic gubernatorial nominee, today called for the enrollment as registered voters by October 17 of 100,000 friends of President Roosevelt.

A drive for registration of 35,000 Roosevelt supporters in Boston got under way before noon. In Worcester County workers, led by Mayor John Mahoney of Worcester, began a drive for registration of 10,000 new voters.

Tonight the former mayor will begin his registration drive in Plymouth County, with an address before members of the Democratic League of that district in the Elks' Home, Middleboro.

Addressing supporters at his campaign headquarters today Mr. Curley predicted that the entire Democratic state ticket will be swept into office by a margin of 150,000 votes.

REPUBLICANS INVITED

At the same time he instructed them to invite their Republican friends to attend Roosevelt rallies during the next five weeks. He said:

"Fifty thousand Republicans changed their enrollment vote in the Democratic primaries of last week and if we can present the real issues to the thousands of other intelligent and reasonable members of the party in this Commonwealth they also will lend their support to the Roosevelt recovery program."

WALSH PRAISES CURLEY

Senator David I. Walsh was equally as enthusiastic in his discussion of the Curley candidacy. In addition to pledging his loyalty to the former mayor, Senator Walsh declared himself at a loss to understand why any Democrat should hesitate to accept the mandate of the people of Massachusetts that Mr. Curley be the nominee of that party. He said:

"So far as I am concerned the voters of the Democratic party have spoken and their verdict is my verdict. That goes without any reservation. It includes every candidate from county commissioner to the distinguished gentleman nominated for governor."

FITZGERALD IS BUSY

Mayor James E. Hagan of Somerville and U. S. Marshal John J. Murphy, his predecessor in that office, were arranging today for meetings of members of their respective political groups with a view to getting the registration drive under way in that city without delay.

Oscar Horton of Athol, one of the most prominent Republicans of Worcester county, and a leader of the forces of former President Hoover in his unsuccessful campaign of 1932, last night formally pledged his support to Mr. Curley.

In addition to calling upon members of his party to support the President and his gubernatorial candidate, Mr. Horton announced that he will make a substantial contribution to the Curley campaign fund. In a formal statement made public today he said:

"James M. Curley is a man of the people and a friend of every man and woman who has suffered during the past five years of depression. I believe that party barriers should be swept aside this year and that every thoughtful citizen should give his support to a man who will co-operate with President Roosevelt in his program to bring peace, happiness and prosperity to the American people once again."

Export Club to Hear Murchison

Dr. Claudius T. Murchison, recently appointed head of the United States bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, will outline plans for the development of New England's foreign trade at a dinner this evening of the Export Club of the Boston Chamber of Commerce. The dinner is at the Chamber building.

Dr. Murchison has initiated a new plan for domestic trade promotion and he will describe how New England business men should be able to profit from the new and enlarged services now available.

Other organizations are co-operating in sponsoring tonight's meeting.

St. Helena Guests to Hear Concert

Guests at St. Helena's House, Union Park street, South End, and their friends will attend a concert tonight by the ERA Civic Chorus of Boston, under the direction of G. Roberts Lunger. The program, to begin at 7:45 p.m., will be a repetition of the successful concert recently given at the Fellowes Athenaeum.

RAIL CHAPEL CAR COMING

Hundreds of Greater Boston Catholics will have an opportunity this week and next to inspect North Carolina's chapel car, "St. Peter," known as the "Traveling Church on Wheels."

The car, which travels about Raleigh, N. C., on Sundays for masses and other religious ceremonies, will arrive here tomorrow afternoon. It will be stationed on a Boston & Maine sidetrack at Nashua street.

On Saturday morning it will be opened for inspection. Each morning at 7 and 8 a. m. there will be a mass celebrated in the chapel by Rev. Cornelius E. Murphy, formerly of Malden, and Rev. Thomas A. Williams, a former Brighton boy. Both priests have been making a tour of cities along the Atlantic seaboard with the car.

Worcester Music Fete Opens Oct. 1

Worcester, Sept. 26—The 75th Worcester music festival will be featured by a series of six concerts in the new Worcester Auditorium from October 1 to October 6.

The concerts are under the supervision of Hamilton B. Wood, president of the association. The first day program of the diamond jubilee festival includes a number of symphonic psalms and songs by the Worcester Festival Chorus.

DOUBLE DEATH TRY FAILS

Lowell, Aug. 27—Mrs. Blanche Laffey, 21-year-old mother of Thorndike street, this city, was rescued from the Merrimack river by a passing autoist early this morning after a second unsuccessful attempt to take her life.

The woman told police officials that she had made an attempt to end her life by drowning in the river last night, but her screams were heard by autoist and she was pulled out. This morning she said that she had taken iodine and plunged into the waters again. Her screams were again heard by passing autoists and she was rescued once more. This time she was taken to the St. Joseph's Hospital, where she is being detained.

The young mother told Police Inspector Dictor Albert J. Cooney that she had attempted suicide because she was despondent over the fact that she was unable through unemployment to pay the board of her year-old-baby.

Never in the History of the Furniture Business Have There Been Such Logical and Urgent Reasons for Immediate Purchase!

Because never before has the Federal Government made it mandatory to raise furniture prices.

There is no choice for you or for us.

When present stocks are sold, we must pay more, and so must you.

It is a positive case of "buy now and save," or "mark time and settle!"

Never before have furniture manufacturers tried so heroically to stem the tide and keep their vast army of workers employed.

Never before has the market been so utterly unable to absorb this patriotic overproduction as during the past year, and the makers have been forced to take heavy losses.

In consequence, high grade merchandise was offered at ridiculously low prices, but in quantities so large, none could consider except firms of strong financial resources.

Therefore, in anticipation of this Sensational Selling Event, we bought heavily as should you while your every dollar has double purchasing power.

Your protection lies in the integrity and business standing of the firm from whom you purchase; so—

SMITH BACKS CHOICE OF LEHMAN

By International News Service

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 27—Governor Herbert H. Lehman was renominated for a second term by acclamation at the Democratic state convention today, after his name had been placed before the delegates by former Governor Alfred E. Smith.

Smith served notice he will be on the firing line for Lehman in the campaign, definitely settling any doubts of his position in the event the Republicans nominate Robert Moses, whom he brought into political life.

After the Lehman seconding speeches, renominations were made of Lieutenant-Governor M. William Bray, Attorney-General John J. Bennett, Jr., Comptroller Morris S. Tremaine and United States Senator Royal S. Copeland.

Making the New Deal the basis of the state campaign, the convention adopted a platform lauding the Roosevelt administration's work and declaring complete belief in the Rooseveltian national policies.

The New Deal plank was the longest in the entire platform.

Cambridge Poison Youth Tells Own Story

By ARTHUR J. QUINN

deeply interested in chemistry in his search for "old age cure" and had often conducted experiments with gunpowder and chemicals at the risk of his life.

He is known among younger Pittsburgh scientists as brilliant but temperamental, and had worked with Dr. John Bowman, son of the Chancellor of the University of Pittsburgh.

Dr. Bowman said at Pittsburgh he was aware Bauer had been seeking a "cure" for old age, and added that he knew Bauer was experimenting with ricin—the rare poison for which there is no antidote and whicch he swallowed yesterday in his Y. M. C. A. room.

Bauer's chance for life improving hourly while he waited with the calm of Socrates meditating upon the hemlock cup, rested in the fact that he ate heartily—a death feast—a half hour after swallowing the poison, and his stomach was forcibly emptied two hours later.

CLEARS UP MYSTERY

In considerable pain from the effects of the poison, his long, strong fingers kneading the blanket edge at his chest, Bauer talked with a reporter while the life and death drama ran to its end and lifted some of the curtain of mystery from his affairs in the following interview:

Q—How much did you take? A—I took 22 grains.

Q—How are you feeling now? A—I'm all right.

Q—Do you still think you are going to die? A—I guess not; they tell me not.

Q—Will you try again to end your life when you are released? A—No, I don't think I will.

Q.—Are you sorry this attempt hasn't been successful? A.—Well, after all, bungling in anything is not pleasant, no matter what it is.

WAS MENTALLY TIRED

Q—Yet you've had the poison for some time? A—Yes, I've had it for a couple of years.

Q—Why did you take it? A—I was just mentally tired.

Q—Was there a girl in it? A—I won't say there wasn't a girl connected with it.

Q—Where did you study chemistry? A—All I had in chemistry was in high school in Pittsburgh and experiments I carried on later.

Q.—There is a card in your pocket with the name Joan D. Gillon, 218 Dwight street, Jersey City, N. J. Who is that? A.—She's just a woman I met on a bus some time ago. I have never seen her since.

Q.—Have you any financial worries? A.—No, I haven't any job, but I have money enough.

Q—Do you expect any members of your family? A—I don't believe they will be up here. Why should they come?

Q—What were you going to use the passport picture in your pocket for? A—I was going to Brazil. I had a job down there.

Q—The name of "Bauer" is mentioned in the Lindbergh case this morning. Did you ever know this man Hauptmann? A—I didn't know him.

Q—Did you ever see him? A—No, I never saw him and I don't know him.

Among Bauer's effects were also found a tearing of quotations from the Bible and a rough map of certain streets in Pittsburgh.

Earlier in the day, convinced that he was going to die, he had laughed when doctors told him he would probably recover. He told Dr. Peter Cernada, who probably saved his life:

"I'll be dead by 1 o'clock this afternoon."

Doubt that Bauer actually swallowed ricin vanished during the early hours of this morning when he began to display symptoms of the poisoning, violent gastric pains.

LAUGHS OFF MOTIVE

Police who questioned him before he was put to bed ran against a blank wall in their efforts to determine the motive for his suicidal act.

He laughed when questioned as to why he did it, and said:

"Does one have a reason for being born? Does one live for a reason or because one is alive? Why, then, should I require a reason to die?"

The phlegmatic police had no argument for this philosophy, and to the doctors who worked over him Bauer said:

"You're just wasting your time. I prepared the poison myself. There is no antidote known to man or science and I am in no pain."

MUNITIONS ON MORRO BARED

ro Castle's log for a year back as well as the log of her sister ship, the Oriente.

Caband told the board the first information the line received about the fire aboard the Morro Castle was about 4:25 in the morning of the day the liner burned off the Jersey coast.

After the first information, he said, the Ward Line was unable to get in touch with the ship. The first call, he added, came from the Radiomarine Corporation.

No wireless had been received from the ship since the previous night, he said, when the death of Captain Robert Willmott was reported.

QUIZZED ON ALAGNA

Caband denied the line had ever cautioned masters of ships to be cautious about sending distress signals; stated there were no general instructions regarding their use and that the line left the matter "entirely in the hands of our captains.'

The witness, questioned about George I. Alagna, second radio officer who charged the company has "thought only about getting out from under" since the disaster, said Alagna had been branded a "trouble maker" by Capt. Willmott but that the line did not attempt to discharge him because Willmott told officials Alagna was going to quit soon.

Caband also said Willmott had never complained of poor discipline in his crew or that the crew was insufficient for the liner.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep . . . Vigor . . . Vitality

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS . . . a doctor's prescription . . . which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes, for they may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS . . . the old reliable relief that contain no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co.

"Cheated"

John L. Bauer, 21, apparently has been cheated from the death he sought when he took a rare poison, ricin, which he made himself, for which no antidote is known. Bauer, who studied chemistry, took the potion in a Cambridge Y. M. C. A. room and then went to the Cambridge Relief Hospital to await death, which, he predicted, would come at 1 p. m. today. It didn't. (Pictures by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer)

Gun in Swamp Will Link 2 to School Man Killing

By JOHN H. NOONAN
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Northfield, Sept. 27—The shotgun "campus murder" of Dr. Elliott Speer, headmaster of Mt. Herman School, appeared on the verge of a sensational solution late today.

State detectives centered their investigation about two men of prominence, and state troopers were combing a swampland two and a half miles outside the town for the missing death weapon, with which detectives expect to link the pair under suspicion to the killing.

If the expected "break" is forthcoming, the climax will have national interest, it was predicted.

Detectives revealed that on Sunday folllowing the murder, shortly after 10:30 a. m., this woman saw an automobile with out-of-state registration plates stop at the edge of the woods.

The car was parked in such a position that it could not be seen by anyone in the house, but was visible to the woman—who happened to be at the time in her garden.

Two men, one of middle-age and one much younger, alighted from the car. The younger man carried something under his arm—the gun, detectives believe. Both went into the swamp and when they emerged a short time later they were empty handed.

RUM DEALERS OFFER PLAN FOR CODE

New York, Sept. 27. As a substitute for a proposed NRA code which has been rejected, the National Retail Liquor Package Stores Association drafted a code for submission to the Federal Alcohol Control Administration.

The substitute proposal, modelled generally along the lines of the distillers, rectifiers and wholesalers' code, would forbid the advertising of prices in store windows or through any other media, including newspapers.

Under its provisions each store would be required to file with the authority a [illegible] and make no changes without the authority's permission. The collective bargaining, minimum pay and maximum hours clauses of the NRA proposal would apply.

This Ear— —That Air

By N. F. T.

Right now the lucrative Fall season is setting in behind sound sanctum walls. Naturally I'm tapping away here at this typewriter in what I suppose might be termed a strictly statistical mood. Accordingly here are some spontaneous prophecies, the sum total of a few pertinent prognostications. Second thoughts however, indicate that many of these predictions will prove mystifying as all get out, even to a professional statistician.

For example, it is quite likely that sponsors will switch program plans while their studio show is going strong, substituting air acts which do not begin to compare favorably with the first feature choice.

Listeners galore will complain about too much commercialism. Whereupon broadcasting backers will announce they have cut the selling spouts from five minutes to four and three-quarters out of every 15.

POTENTIALITIES

Ben Bernie will belittle Winchell . . . Walter will in turn whack Ben . . . They'll both wink when they meet. . . . McNamee will make another built-up "boner" such as his "gasoloon" slip—on purpose of course. . . . Graham often goes wrong deliberately, just to keep himself talked about . . . Boston's baritoning Edward McHugh will add to his coast to coast audience and move into the big money. . . . Ditto for the Yankee network songstress Alice O'Leary, now causing comment aplenty in New York network circles. . . .

Paul Whiteman places his order for white vests with the same London tailor who measures and makes clothes for the Prince of Wales.

Liquor Smugglers Transport Chinese

Huge rum syndicates, balked in their efforts to smuggle liquor into New England by a fleet of 22 coast guard boats, have turned to traffic in Chinese coolies, it was reported today by Captain Ce[illegible] M. Gabbett, commander of the Boston division

Although Coast Guards have not as yet seized any ships bearing the coolies, Capt. Gilbert has learned of an influx of Chinese off the coast of Maine and complaints indicate that the syndicate have turned to coolie smuggling.

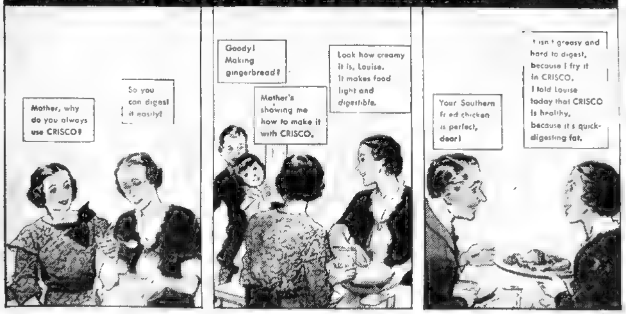
"Crisco is light and easily digested," says Mrs. Mary Johns

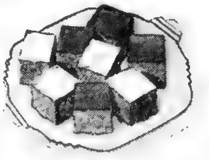
CRISCO is the creamy quick-digesting fat

Mrs. Mary Johns, being a Southerner, loves to make gingerbread and fry Southern chicken. And her children, Louise, Slaton and Jeanette, love to eat them. Mrs. Johns says: "I never give the children heavy foods that are hard on the digestive organs. That's why I prefer Crisco—it is light and easily digested—it doesn't make food greasy or over-rich. Gingerbread is my specialty—if I don't make it often, I hear about it—and it never disagrees, because I always use Crisco."

MRS. JOHNS' STORY IN PICTURES



Mother, why do you always use CRISCO?
So you can digest it easily!
Goody! Making gingerbread?
Mother's showing me how to make it with CRISCO.
Look how creamy it is, Louise. It makes food light and digestible.
Your Southern fried chicken is perfect, dear!
It isn't greasy and hard to digest, because I fry it in CRISCO. I told Louise today that CRISCO is healthy, because it's quick-digesting fat.



MRS. JOHNS' WHOLE WHEAT GINGERBREAD

(She uses whole wheat and Crisco because both are digestible)

½ cup Crisco
[illegible] brown sugar, sifted
2 eggs
1 cup molasses
1[illegible] cups white flour
[illegible] teaspoon soda
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup whole wheat flour
¾ cup milk

Save your mixing time. Measure Crisco (the creamy [illegible] shortening), brown sugar, eggs and molasses into mixing bowl. Beat all together in one easy stirring. Sift all dry ingredients except whole wheat [illegible] Add dry ingredients to Crisco mixture alternately with milk. [illegible] or 2 cake pans (7" x 7") rubbed with Crisco. Bake in [illegible] oven (350° F.) for 30 to 35 minutes. Delicious served warm—either plain—or as a dessert with sweetened whipped cream.

LUCKY DEVIL'S FOOD CAKE

Mrs. [illegible] says: Rich as it is it's always light and digestible with Crisco.

[illegible]
1 cup thick sour milk
½ teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
[illegible] teaspoons baking powder

Blend [illegible] Crisco, sugar and eggs thoroughly in one [illegible] how easily and satisfactorily three [illegible] operations are now combined in one [illegible] Crisco, which comes to you already [illegible] cocoa in hot water until smooth and [illegible] Then add milk beaten with soda [illegible] and baking powder [illegible] been sifted together. Bake in [illegible] layer cake pans in moderate oven [illegible] about 30 minutes. This makes three large layers which may be iced with the following [illegible] granulated sugar and ½ teaspoon [illegible] water to a temperature of 238° F. [illegible] soft ball in cold water. Anchovy and Egg Salad Is Hearty

1 cup shredded hearts of lettuce
8 anchovies (or 6 boned sardines).
½ cup chopped celery hearts
Kraft French Dressing
5 hard-cooked eggs
Lettuce.

Toss together the shredded lettuce, chopped celery and chopped egg whites. Press egg yolks through a coarse strainer, chop the anchovies or sardines and [illegible] into the lettuce mixture. [illegible] French Dressing to moisten and season well. Serve on crisp lettuce with Kraft French Dressing. This fine dressing is made from the choicest spices and golden salad oils that are blended so thoroughly they cannot separate.

Modernization in Oil Heat

With renovation and modernizing of homes now greatly spurred by government credit, householders may well consider installing Range Oil Burners in their kitchen stoves. These burners avoid much dirt and labor, and save much time. They allow for more exact control of cooking and heating temperatures.

The Florence Stove Company now offers seven models of Range Burners. Some have fuel tanks and valve fittings in green and ivory, gray or buff and brown; one has an automatic electric pump, another a convenient hand pump. Lower priced models come with metal or glass reservoirs. The newest development in this line is a beautiful complete oil-burning kitchen range, simple and modern in its lines.

There are Florence Oil [illegible] Heaters of widely varied sizes and styles—some circulating, others radiant heaters; some have concealed cooking tops [illegible] (for kerosene only) are portable; one model heats up to five rooms, others of varying capacity down to one room, office or store.

Macaroni Takes Place of Potato

When a change from potatoes is desired, macaroni or spaghetti, served in any one of scores of different ways, provides the same food values as the tuber and lends appetite satisfaction for hearty eaters. Noodles may also be used in a variety of dishes.

The products of C. F. Mueller Co., known everywhere for their high standards of quality, are the choice of expert chefs and homemakers [illegible] the baskets [illegible] American-Advertiser Cooking School.

FALL CLASSES START SOON

The regular fall sessions of the Martha Lee Cooking School in the kitchen and auditorium at 5 Winthrop square, will begin Tuesday evening, October 2, at 6:30. This is the class for brides and business girls. The afternoon class will begin sessions on the following day at 2 p. m.

Registrations for both of these classes have been coming in rapidly, but there are still a limited number of seats at each of the classes available. Those who are planning to attend either class should make application immediately because none can be received after seating capacity has been exhausted.

These two classes, with the [illegible] of graduates in every Greater Boston [illegible], have won wide popularity for the practical and helpful instruction provided, not only in cooking and planning economical and wholesome meals, but for the assistance in general home economics.

This year in particular efficient management of the home will be more important than ever if household budgets are to be kept in proper balance.

In addition to the actual demonstrations and instructions during the classes a sheaf of tested recipes is given out at each class and Martha Lee is always available for consultation on household problems, either in person or by mail.

Timely Hints for Wash Day

Your white cotton curtains may be washed just as any other white cottons are washed. Curtains should be thoroughly rinsed. A trace of bluing in the last rinse water may help to improve the appearance of yellowed curtains.

For scorch marks on linen mix one-half pint vinegar, two ounces fuller's earth, one-half ounce shredded white soap and the juice of two lemons. Boil until thick paste is formed. Spread the paste over the [illegible] allow to dry, then wash out. [illegible] the process if necessary.

[illegible] rings except plain bands when washing laces as [illegible] other delicate fabrics. [illegible] a wet fiber and tear [illegible] places should be mended before washing. This little precaution will catch the loose threads and prevent the lace design from raveling [illegible] while the material is being washed.

Avoid Overcooking

Vegetables, especially green ones, should be quickly cooked and not overcooked. Cabbage, for instance, boiled long and slowly is unpalatable. Cabbage quickly cooked in a little water and served plain or with a savory sauce or seasoning is delicious.

Your HEADQUARTERS for fine MEATS

MRS. FRANCES NORTHCROSS

Nationally known lecturer on home economics at the American-Advertiser Free Cooking School who endorses First National meats and used them in her demontrations at the Hotel Bradford as she has for the past four years.

NEW ENGLAND WOMEN are recognizing
FIRST NATIONAL MEATS

YOU can buy only the best quality meats in your First National Store. It has been our policy to sell only the highest quality of meats at all times and it has been by strictly living up to that ideal that First National has won the fine reputation for meat excellence that it now enjoys. First National beef, for instance, is all heavy corn-fed steer beef—the best the market affords. Other meats and poultry, in season, are always carefully selected from the best sources.

Wtih its great resources First National has much greater control over the quality of its meat than the average merchant. Thousands of New England women now buy all their meats in First National Stores because experience has given them confidence in its quality and because they have discovered that here they can safely save money on their meat purchases. The skilled meat men who serve you in our stores are always ready and eager to help you get just what you want.

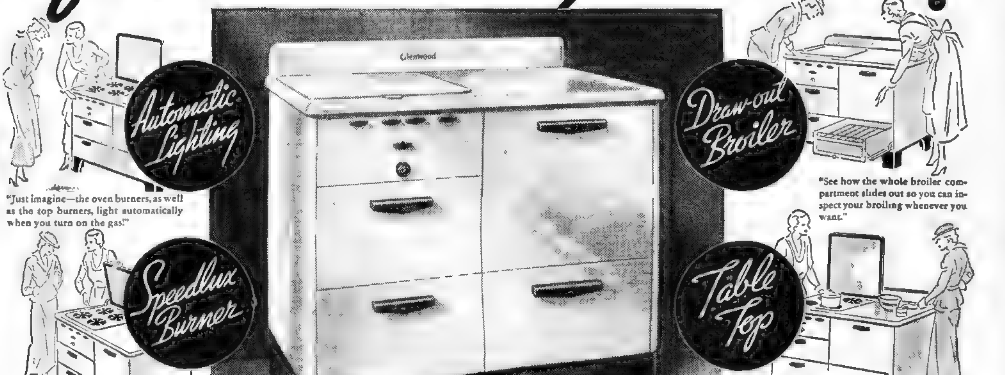
THE NEW

Glenwood

"MASTERPIECE"



"Just imagine—the oven burners, as well as the top burners, light automatically when you turn on the gas!"

"See how the whole broiler compartment slides out so you can inspect your broiling whenever you want."

"You would never think these round, polished discs were gas burners. No holes to get clogged, nothing to get dirty!"

"This smooth, flat top of acid-resisting enamel gives you handy table space right on your range."

The Range that makes Gas Cooking Supreme!

Yes, this new Glenwood is a masterpiece—the most up-to-the-minute creation of the largest manufacturer of gas ranges in New England and the builder of the finest ranges in the country.

Beautifully designed in the new, smooth, streamline manner it offers every latest convenience of modern gas cookery. New cleanliness never before achieved with its shiny Speedlux burners that have no holes to get clogged. Self lighting top and oven burners—no fuss with matches or push buttons. An ingenious broiler that draws out and makes broiling as easy as top cooking. Sturdy steel construction, extra heavy insulation and heat control!

Truly a remarkable range—a range that lacks nothing, that brings you every convenience of automatic cooking and the new ease of handy, table-top convenience. Such a range, you would think, must be expensive. But, because of a large order placed with the manufacturers, we are able to cut its original price of $88 to $69 with a further saving of 10% for your old range, bringing the net cost down to $62.10! With your old range as down payment you can put this range in your kitchen now, without a cent of initial investment, and pay for it on the easy budget terms of only $1 a week!

Seeing it incurs no obligation. Come in, today.

Radio's Best Voice

In search of the best voice in radio, Houghton's selected "Bede Best," mystery crooner, to feature their broadcast at 8 p. m. tonight over WNAC to commemorate the store's 91st anniversary. A sale, marking the same event, begins tomorrow.

101ST BIRTHDAY AT HOVEY'S

Boston's oldest department store, C. F. Hovey Company, today celebrates its 101st anniversary.

More than a century ago the firm was founded by Charles Fox Hovey, an importer and wholesaler, who wanted a retail outlet for his merchandise. His partners were Washington Williams and James H. Bryden.

When the store was first organized it was the custom for wholesalers to go down to the waterfront and bargain with ship owners [illegible]. Bargaining was [illegible] stores but Hovey [illegible] policy of a standard [illegible].

Originally established in Winter street, the firm soon moved [illegible] Summer street [illegible] its present site. There once stood the mansion of Sir William Pepperell, a R[illegible].

The Duke of Kent, father of Queen Victoria, was a guest there at the wedding of R[illegible] Amory and Nancy Geyer. The next owner of the building was S. P. Gardner whose [illegible] are still visible on the front of the store.

The building was saved during the great Boston fire of 1872 by the quick wit of the firm's blanket buyer. He covered a [illegible] and windows with blankets and then organized a bucket brigade that kept these wetted down.

Present officers of the firm are Adolph Ehrlich, president; Daniel [illegible], vice-president; Walter [illegible], treasurer; William Brown, Richard Ehrlich and William Ehrlich, directors.

MILK NOW HAS VITAMIN "D"

Vitamin "D," the only one of the six vitamins so far discovered by scientists which is not generally present in food, is considered one of the most important to humanity since it is essential in the building of strong bones and teeth.

Since modern civilization forced man into a style of life which cuts him off except for a few days each year from the beneficial rays of the sun, the lack of Vitamin D has become a serious problem to public health officials. The Dr. Steenbock process, which not only irradiates milk, but a number of other foods with the bone and tooth building vitamin has won, so [illegible] more battle of mankind against the harmful influences of modern life.

"I'VE INTERVIEWED GROCERS ABOUT Good Tea"

BY MRS. FRANCES NORTHCROSS OF THE HOME ECONOMICS SCHOOL

Our leading grocers "know their tea." Each one I have called on is strong in his praise of good Black tea. They say their better customers prefer it. They like its rich, winy flavor and satisfying strength. There is nothing weak or watery about it.

And here is a tip straight from these alert men-behind-counters who keep tabs on public taste: India's good Black tea is winning more and more new friends every day. Because India Tea is always certain to bring you the satisfying drink you want. And more, it is so easy to identify. To be sure you are getting genuine India Tea, simply look for the trademark (left) on the package you buy. Make a note of that, it is worth your while. I know.

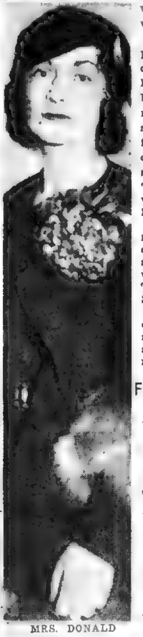
FOUR DEBUTANTES WILL MAKE BOWS AT COUNTRY CLUB BALL

'beacon hill'

By Betty Alden

MRS. EZRA RIPLEY THAYER gave a tea this afternoon at her beautiful estate, Turkey Hill, Hingham, as a welcome home party for her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Carter Starr (Ethel Thayer), whose marriage took place in Italy last year. A number of friends from Cohasset and the South Shore were invited to meet the young couple who are both very popular.



MRS. DONALD CARTER STARR

Mrs. Starr is an artist of great promise and it was during her residence in Europe in the interests of her vocation that she met her husband. Mr. Starr had started on a round the world tour on his 85-foot schooner Pilgrim with a party of five friends and was on the last last leg of his two-years' journey when he stopped off in Italy and met Miss Thayer. Their marriage took place very soon after and the Pilgrim sailed home without him.

Mr. and Mrs. Starr are now on a round of visits with friends and are expected at Turkey Hill today for a sojourn with Mrs. Thayer. Later they will all come up to Boston where Mrs. Thayer has a beautiful home on Bay State road.

Miss Helen Howes was a feature of the afternoon with her original monologues. As it will probably be an indoor party, it will be limited in number.

Fete for Young Folks

ON SATURDAY the young folks of Dedham will meet in a Gymkana at the Dedham Polo and Hunt Club . . . admission 50 cents. Mrs. Robert B. Almy, joint M. F. H. of the Dedham Hunt, heads the committee in charge, which includes Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Cabot, Mrs. Arthur Lyman, Mrs. George T. Rice, Mrs. William B. Rogers, Jr., to whom entries must be returned which include those of members and their children or of those who use the club stables, Miss Eleanor Williams, Mrs. James Jackson, and Mr. and Mrs. Josiah H. Child.

Mr. B. Nason Hamlin will judge the events, which will take the form of an egg and spoon race, musical stalls, a trotting relay race, equipment race, the groom's event and a nightshirt relay race, whatever that may be.

Mr. Lawrence Morgan will be ringmaster. Following the morning program lunch will be served in the clubhouse at 12:30. At 3 o'clock a polo match will be played on the club field, while at 3 30 p. m. hounds will meet at the home of Dr. Hans Zinsser.

Margaret Hallowell to Make Debut

MISS MARGARET HALLOWELL will be presented on Saturday at a tea on the beautiful Hallowell estate on Brush Hill road, Milton, by her mother, Mrs. N. Penrose Hallowell. Her cousin, Miss Ann Brooks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence G. Brooks, will share honors with her.

The tea will be large with many of the debutantes of this winter pouring . . . Miss Marjory Saltonstall, Miss Cora Peabody, Miss Mary Bryant, Miss Alice Hutchins, Miss Hope Blanchard, Miss Anne Donald, Miss Jane Donald, Miss Susan Dalton, Miss Elise Russell of Jaffrey, N. H., Miss Daphne Brooks, Miss Martha Allen of Long Island, who will be the house guest of Miss Hallowell during the week-end, Miss Mary Wigglesworth, Miss Jane Wellington and Miss Jane Hutchins.

Miss Hallowell is sailing for Europe on the first of December to be away until the early spring. She has already had one presentation party in New York, a sort of peeking-out party in New York society, when Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pratt honored her with a dance at their estate on Long Island. She was graduated from Milton Academy.

EXPERTS STUDY BEACH METEOR

Harvard scientists today were studying fragments of a meteor which flashed through the air with brilliance that outshone the sun and buried itself in the sands of Salisbury beach narrowly missing a group of ERA workers.

The meteor shower was one of unusual brightness and was reported from points as far separated as [illegible], Maine, Newburyport, Northboro, Hingham and Hyannis. The fragment picked up on the beach looked like a piece of clinker when found. It weighed just over a pound and was seven inches long.

Astronomers said the meteors were "star dust," bits of disintegrated worlds that have drifted [illegible] through space for centuries.

1000 QUIT IN NEW TEXTILE MILL STRIKE

This Is Life
ROBERT E. ROGERS

May I pinch hit for myself today with a fragment of an address delivered yesterday at Swampscott before the New England Federation of Women's Clubs, on "Literature Today in New England"?

Robert E. Rogers

If I were to choose, out of the half a hundred names who would be instantly recognized as popular and successful New England men and women of letters, a selection of the most distinguished, who would be included? Many men will have many choices, but I think that mine would run to about a dozen, say a baker's dozen, of men and women who stand head and shoulders above the others. Most of them are living, for we are speaking of the literature of today. One or two are so recently dead that they are to all intents and purposes a part of our living letters.

That list, then, would include: Irving Babbitt, apostle of Humanism, the philosophy of the gentleman and scholar, still best represented in New England; Gamaliel Bradford, psychographer and spiritual citizen of the world; Alice Brown, dean of our women writers, and the last survivor of the group that included Mary E. Wilkins and Sarah Orne Jewett; Dorothy Canfield, pedagogue and liberal moralist of Vermont; Robert Frost, poet of the woods and fields; Joe Lincoln, the eternal Cape Codder; Edward Arlington Robinson, a Maine accent in his verse and a Yankee curiosity about character and moral problems.

Edna St. Vincent Millay, woman and rebel and mystic, Walter Pritchard Eaton the Thoreau of the Berkshires and the wit of the playhouses, Amy Lowell, who, with Emily Dickinson, redeems New England from a reputation for women's magazine verse; Robert Grant, veteran jurist, experienced Bostonian, whose scalpel has dissected social Boston with cool irony but with affection, Kenneth L. Roberts, the finest historical novelist in America, of Maine traditions all compact, and William Lyons Phelps, best beloved critic and advertiser of books in America, because he celebrates only those he likes and approves of and leaves the rest for time to deal with

A small list for our population, of course, but a list of singularly pure quality, of originality all compact, of what one might call integrity These books and written from the heart and mind and spirit, not because a publisher wants a book on a certain subject in a hurry.

In all these people there are certain consistent and continuing characteristics. Even the most radical of them all, Edna Millay, has in her a certain steady inheritance which even her violent sympathies and feminine rebellions cannot quite obliterate. That is why I put Irving Babbitt in, although he was born in Ohio. He was the spiritual son of the great school of our letters, in which the "inner check," the idea of decorum and decency, was supreme, as opposed to naturalism, loose humanitarianism, democracy, and the exaltation of the easy common virtues He was no New Dealer.

Although our list of writers of fiction does not contain any of the more sensational names in the modern novel, yet we have a few widely read and favorably known However each differs from another, it is possible to make a generalization or two about our section in fiction. There is in our writers very little of the naturalistic realism of the past score of years and none of the literary beastliness of the younger Southern writers

There is little satire on the American scene There are no propaganda fictions, no proletarian Marxian stories written to a formula. There is virtually none of the stuff intended for Hollywood and the drugstores of New York, the ultra-smart, ultra-dirty kind of thing. Our New England writers simply do not have these qualities If we have such writers among us, it is because they have come to Provincetown for a summer vacation or have settled down in Cambridge on the ground that the more respectable a place looks the more dirt there must be there.

On the whole our novelists still deal with the civilized society of gentle folk or the old stock in village or on farm. They are interested in real people, in character studies which bear some resemblance to reality. They are still interested in moral problems, which they treat on the assumption that moral problems are not entirely without seriousness However much superficially times have changed there is a certain ancestral quality discernible in their books.

They are not deracinee, as the French say—uprooted—neither the books nor the writers They are planted deep in the old rocky soil or in the towns and villages, almost as old, in which the conduct of the present still can be viewed and judged in terms of the continuous past That is why New England literature may still be said to have a philosophy.

BOY FUGITIVE IS CAUGHT AGAIN

James Bryan, 16, of Medford, alleged by police to have twice escaped after being captured in a stolen car, was today again apprehended in Charlestown

On September 18 the youth was taken in Stoneham after a pursuit by officers who fired several shots He was confined in the Middlesex County jail in Cambridge, from which he escaped by climbing a rain pipe and dropping 60 feet from the roof.

Sergeant Michael J Brown and Patrolman Thomas S MacLean caught him today in Rutherford avenue, Charlestown He was taken

ATTIC REPAIRS SUGGESTED FOR HOMES

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

(This is the 15th of a series of articles explaining the new National Housing Act, which, under facilities developed by the Federal Housing Administration, enables home owners in Boston and other communities to obtain inexpensive, easy-to-repay loans for repairing or improving their homes

The often overlooked space in the attic gives the home owner untold opportunities for enhancing the value of his house as part of Boston's Better Housing program

The space in an unfinished attic has a number of distinctions. The finished rooms of a house usually are essential and have a certain set function to perform, such as the dining room, the living room, bath room, bed rooms and the kitchen. Each must be furnished in a more or less standard way according to the use made of it

STUDIO SUGGESTED

Maybe the Little Woman of the house would like to have a sewing room, or a studio If so, the attic is a fine place for either of them Or a den can be built there for the husband or the boys It is a shame at any rate, to let valuable attic space go to waste

Stairs to the attic, if these do not already exist, usually can be built without disturbing the order of the lower rooms, or they may be of the disappearing type. An infinite variety of finishes may be worked out

AIDS INSULATION

To Mrs Ellen M. G of Salisbury

"You seem to be in an excellent position to obtain a loan under the Federal Housing plan. Without a mortgage on your property and with you and your husband employed, it would seem as if you might be able to go to any bank qualified to make loans under this plan and obtain the amount you request."

HOUSING EDITOR.

To Miss M. K. L. of Concord

"You should determine through contractors and others just how much money you need to furnish your home. You can then go to a bank qualified to loan under the Federal Housing Administration plan and if your circumstances warrant it, the loan will be made. In your case, it would be the Concord National Bank to which you would apply for a loan.

"As to your neighbor, it would appear that his situation is such that his case might better be taken up with the Home Owners' Loan Corporation. This is on the assumption that while you call him a farmer, he and his property are not within the farm classification. There is now provision under the Federal Housing Act for the loaning of money with which to pay taxes, interests arrears or other liens or assessments.

"The Home Owners' Loan Corporation does give assistance to home owners in this classification of distress. However, if his property is really a farm, then he may make application to the Farm Land Bank whose headquarters are in Springfield, but which has a branch office in Waltham."

HOUSING EDITOR.

(Further details on the National Housing Act will be outlined and more letters will be answered in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.)

Wives Earn Right to Lay Down Law

RUTH RICHMAN — MRS. RICHMAN

There are two lawyers now in the Richman family. Mrs. Sylvia Richman, wife of Attorney Moses I. Richman of Queensboro st., Back Bay, has just passed the Massachusetts bar examinations. Daughter Ruth, a year and a half old, applauds the news of mamma's success.

Legal aptitude is epidemic in the Murphy family, too. Mrs. Loretta M. Murphy, successful in Massachusetts bar examinations just completed, is only a few months ahead of her husband, Arthur Murphy, who will take his tests in January. The Murphy home is on Colonial ave., Dorchester. (Pictures by Boston Evening American Staff Photographer.)

NOBLE HELD IN $5000 ROBBERY

Haverhill, Sept 27 Charles Noble, brother of Russell Noble, convicted hammer slayer of Mrs Clara E C Ellis, was taken to Lawrence today for arraignment in superior court on a "Joe Doe" indictment warrant charging conspiracy to rob in connection with the $5000 payroll robbery at the P & G. Shoe Company, September 7

Police moved for his arraignment after State Detective Richard Griffin had announced a witness of the robbery had picked Noble out of a lineup as having been near the scene at the time

Noble, who has been under surveillance for some time, was arrested last night at his home, 101 Emerson street, after two Boston men, arrested at the time of the robbery, had changed not guilty pleas to guilty and conferred with authorities. These defendants, Anthony Dellarusso and Henry Sorrentino, will be sentenced Friday.

It was Charles Noble, who during the investigation into the baffling murder of Mrs. Ellis, wealthy Haverhill widow, first attracted suspicion to his brother by taking her watch to police. Russell Noble is serving a life sentence.

Hollywood, Sept 27 (INS) Actors' agents have attached the salaries of June Knight and Janet Beecher, movie actresses, because commissions assertedly were unpaid. June was said to owe $6875, Janet $11,200

DISCRIMINATION IS CHARGED IN SOUTHBRIDGE

Threats of new strikes in the troubled woolen industry of New England materialized today when nearly 1000 woolen workers of the Hamilton woolen mills in Southbridge walked out as a demonstration against alleged discrimination by the Hamilton company officials.

Ira H Dickins, national labor organizer with headquarters in Worcester, led the new strike. The company, Dickins charged, was bringing in new non-union workers to take the place of union employes

Threat that another 1000 workers would join the strike ranks was heard in Rockdale and Webster

The management of four additional Fall River mills today announced they would resume operations Monday, increasing by two thousand their number of workers re-employed since the textile strike ended

Spurred by the new outbreaks, President Roosevelt's new textile labor relations board rushed work today to maintain peace in the troubled zones Nashua N H was considered one of the other threatening spots

Gorman Asks Unions' Confidence in Board

By Associated Press

Washington, Sept. 27—Francis J. Gorman, chairman of the textile strike committee today called upon all workers to have confidence in the new textile labor relations board and to withhold any action toward renewal of the strike

Gorman's plea to the former strikers was issued as the new board, set up by President Roosevelt last night, went to work with instructions to investigate charges of discrimination against union members.

Gorman said he would submit a list of discrimination cases to the new board before departing tomorrow for his home in Providence, R. I. He will address a meeting of New England textile workers there on Saturday and will leave next week for the American Federation of Labor convention in San Francisco.

He said a message from local leaders in Concord, N C, today reported there was danger of a walkout in 11 mills because union workers had been denied re-employment

Mulloney, Deery Decision Monday

Decision on the guilt or innocence of Daniel C. Mulloney, president of the closed Federal National Bank, and John A. Deery, president of the closed Salem Trust Company, will be announced by Judge James A. Morton, Jr., at 2 p. m. Monday.

Arguments in the case, which charges Mulloney with misapplication of $131 000 of the funds of the Federal National Bank and Deery with aiding and abetting him, closed before Judge Morton, Jr., yesterday.

Girl Identifies Theft Suspect

The trial of Victor R. Ragalevsky, 22, of East Second street, South Boston, charged with stealing a bag containing $3700 worth of jewelry, was resumed in Middlesex superior criminal court today Miss Marie Brunette of Bartlett street Malden has identified Ragalevsky as the man who snatched the jewelry bag from an auto parked in front of a Malden jewelry store last April

O. O. McIntyre
NEW YORK
DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 27—Not in many years has New York's tempo seemed so muffled. Everybody appears to be outside the rim of activity—marking time. Observers say the metropolis is performing with the same sombre attenuations of London just before her burst into gayety

O. O. McIntyre

There are few dressy crowds at the cafes, no spontaneity. A silk hat at night is almost the object of staring. Opening nights are colorless. The shining limousines that purred to theater doors have been supplanted by taxis. The avenue's evening promenade has vanished.

Usually fall is the showiest of seasons. Folk with money are back from Europe and their country places. And the stores fill with their best dressed clientele. Dinner, luncheons and cocktail parties in other years were in profusion. And everybody wanted to go somewhere after the play.

Just now the bulk of the populace mills about in indecision, awaiting something. London's deadfall lasted two months, the air filled with dire predictions. Then flood-gates burst. Everybody started doing things and going places. New York may be on the brink of similar phenomenon.

This topsy-turvy world: On Mott street in Chinatown last evening a raggedy old fellow whose accents bespoke his Irishry had become a sandwich man. And the sign he carried, turtle like, was in Chinese lettering.

Hervey Allen is perhaps the only author to send out form letters to fans. Evidently he was so deluged with favorable comments for his "Anthony Adverse" there was nothing else to do. An indignant and disillusioned Charleston, S. C., lady, who received one, forwards it to me. Her name is typed in badly, revealing the deception. But the Hervey letter is a masterpiece of circumlocution. There is scarcely anything one could say that has not been anticipated in the several paragraphs.

George Bernard Shaw used to reply daintily in green ink on a post-card to epistolary compliments. Until he discovered they were being sold at 50 cents each for the signature. Now he seldom replies, but when he does it is from a secretary and there is no signature worth selling.

An English playwright picked up his entire second act on the sidelines of a Long Island veranda this summer. A group of young ladies who had been tennising in shorts were caught at tea by a lorgnetted lady with a very broad a. They tried earnestly to entertain her until their hostess, who was taking a tennis lesson, arrived. She was difficult, hoity-toity and how have you been? So they decided with winks to take her for a ride, spiking her gin fizzes as they went along and leaving her, a few minutes before the hostess finally arrived, in furious rage and hopelessly cock-eyed. One can imagine Mary Boland in such a part.

Most working newspapermen were impressed by the importation as guest critic by the late World of St. John Ervine, the London critic, a few years ago. St. John, pronounced Sinjin, was something new. And wrote ponderous but readable reviews His first one, indeed, overlapping two full columns. He seemed filled with Shavian contentiousness in print and, like so many Irishmen, often flew from himself into a pose. The other day I received a letter from an old friend and boyhood friend of St. John Ervine. Only when he knew him he was Johnny Greer, he says.

Thingumabobs: Big Bill Edwards is an astonishingly graceful diver . . . Beauty parlors have shown the greatest business increases during the depression . . . Edgar Rice Burroughs, the "Tarzan" author, was once a policeman in Salt Lake City . . John N. Willys had three sets of orchids a day delivered to his bride on their recent honeymoon crossing . . . W. A. Brady and Grace George may join the permanent colony of New Yorkers in Hollywood . . . Helen Jacobs, tennis star, likes to dine in the quiet Southern tea room places . . . Damon Runyon generally patronizes the same restaurant steadily for six months then goes to another.

For the first time in years I noticed potatoes souffle on a New York menu They were famous at the old Holland House bar and the Fifth avenue. But Amon Carter wrecked my taste for the fried pufferies in Paris in 1929. At Ciro's one evening he bellowed for the head waiter, pointed to his souffle order and demanded: "I won't eat these until I see who blew them up!"

"It's silly of me," she said [illegible] a patent effort, for I [illegible] had startled her. "But I've forgotten just where the bath[illegible] are. I've visited in so many homes, you know, that I get all mixed up."

"The nearest one is right here," I said, indicating it. Then I drew a chair over to the window and sat down.

MADGE "ON THE JOB"

"You mustn't worry any more about me," I said. "I haven't a thing to do, and I'm going to stay right here until you're ready to go down. No, it's no use you're saying a word. As you young people are fond of saying, I'm 'on the job,' and I intend to stay on it."

She looked obliquely at me for a second, and I think she fully comprehended my meaning. But she cleverly masked whatever chagrin was hers.

"It's very sweet of you," she said, as she went into the ba[illegible] room, "but it's totally unnecessary. However, I can see you're a very determined lady."

"My slangy young people would tell you that 'you don't know the half of it, dearie'," I said, smiling at her, and then the door closed behind her.

I picked up a magazine and pretended to read, congratulating myself that I possessed enough presence of mind to see that the thing was right [illegible] I pretended to be absorbed [illegible] when Avis came out of the [illegible]room, but my eyes furtively f[illegible]wed her, and when she had clo[illegible] the door of my room ag[illegible] I [illegible] myself tremulous w[illegible] excitement of a discover[illegible]

Announcing an Engagement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—Under these circumstances it would be the best f[illegible] your father to announce [illegible] gagement. When you have decided on what date you a[illegible] to make this announcement, go to see your close r[illegible] friends and tell them of [illegible] news, asking them to [illegible] "not to tell" before you make the newspaper announcement. Then write to those relatives and close friends who live too far from you to tell by word of mouth. Then the people most concerned with this important news will know before the acquaintances who will read it in the newspaper.

The newspaper announcement might read:

"Mr. George Alexander Trumbull, of 987 Park Terrace, announces the engagement of his daughter, Mary Alden Trumbull, to Mr. John Humphrey Bryan, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Clifford Bryan, of 100 Fifth street."

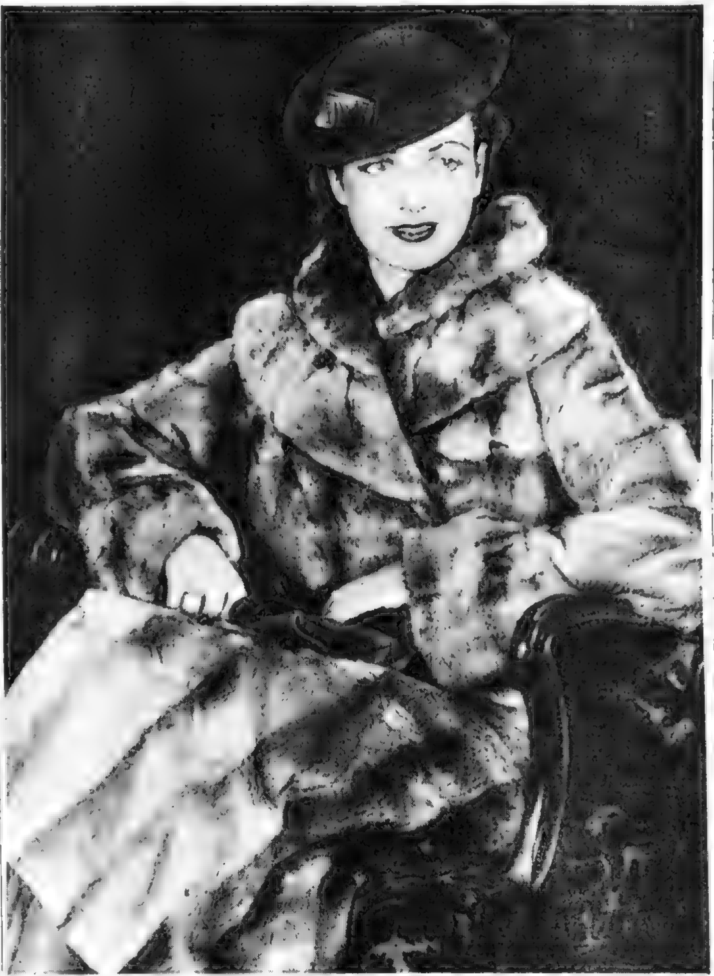
The Kind of Fur Coat That Can Be a Business Girl's Best Friend



SILVER muskrat skins make the very practical little coat illustrated. The lovely silver-and-gold pelts have been styled to a smart town coat instead of a sports model, and its double collar and tulip sleeves—caught above the wrist and allowed to bell out like a flower—are details that make of it a handsome thing. This is the kind of fur coat in which you can enjoy snowy weather, when wearers of more costly furs scurry along and worry about damage to the fur. It is, to my mind, one of the best possible solutions of the business girl's problem. It offers snug warmth, becoming young charm, and an amiable ability to combine with all day clothes. Its cost is far under a hundred dollars. For further details on the coat, which is from a Boston shop, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

New Leaflet and Hot Epsom Salts Treatment Will Put You on Right Path

By Juliet Shelby

IF YOU FEEL YOUR feet breaking down, run while you still have the strength to the nearest drug store and garner for yourself some epsom salts of the good old-fashioned kind.

An epsom salts bath will do more to relieve tired, aching feet than anything I know of. If your feet are barely bearing up under the strain of mistreatment or of ill-fitting shoes, begin today to whip them into shape.

Lovely feet are essential to the beauty and charm of every woman and only feet that are comfortable and healthy are truly lovely. To say that the condition of a woman's feet are reflected in her face is not going far afield these days. Allow foot ills to send up their telegraphic messages of pain, and lines of worry and suffering appear with alarming rapidity to rob her of poise and beauty.

FOOT ILLS AND WRINKLES

There are so many wrinkled foreheads, frowns and unhappy moments of real suffering for which tired, aching feet are directly responsible, that it behooves us to take a small degree of pride in the health of our feet.

Isn't it true that the majority of us go along making the best of our foot misery, wearing high, spindle heels and displaying tiny, pointed toes that would put the heathen Chinese to shame? It is natural for all of us to want small and smartly shod feet, but when we sacrifice our health and our disposition to attain this end, the price comes rather high.

There are a few simple things that we ourselves can do to relieve weary feet. An epsom salts bath, used by some of the leading foot specialists, is one of those things. Here it is:

SALTS BATH

Dissolve one-fourth cup of epsom salts in about two gallons of hot water. Immerse the feet for a period of two minutes, then spray or rinse in cold water for about one-half minute. Repeat this process twice, finishing with the cold water and a brisk rub.

The same process may be employed, and with the same correspondingly good results, by substituting the same quantity of bicarbonate of soda or boric acid powder instead of the epsom salts. You have no idea how refreshing one of these baths is twice a week.

My leaflet on foot comfort is very helpful to every woman who prides herself on her general appearance. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope along with your inquiry to Juliet Shelby, Boston Evening American, Boston, for this information.

Massage Irons Out Lines

Question: Although in the past I have taken excellent care of my skin, it is now in a deplorable state because of lines and crow's-feet. Can you help me?

E. F., Taunton.

Answer: Massage is the best thing for the lines. The lines in the forehead should be massaged by starting at the bridge of the nose with the middle finger of both hands, brace your fingers by placing the thumb about the cheek bone. Smooth out toward the hair line. It is more beneficial to smooth in a nourishing cream with the massage.

Massage the lines around the mouth starting with the middle finger of both hands and smooth from the lips outward on the cheeks. For the lines around the eyes use the middle fingers of both hands and with a gentle circling motion starting on each side of the bridge of the nose, travel upward, circle the eyebrows, around the temples, and down across the cheeks to the nose again.

Best Contract Players Are Courageous Gamblers

By Josephine Culbertson

One of the many attributes of a good Contract Bridge player is courage. He must be aggressive in the bidding, and in the play he must be able to launch fearlessly a campaign which, if unsuccessful, will cost him one or more tricks.

The highest courage is called for when, playing against the Declarer, a player sees that the "running" type of defense is necessary. This is the situation when Declarer has an established suit upon which he can discard all his losers if he can get in the lead, and it behooves the Defenders to grab as many of their tricks as are available before they allow the lead to slip from their grasp. In conducting this type of defense a player must be prepared at times to lead from tenace combinations such as Ace-Queen or King-Jack, although such leads are usually considered suicidal when there is a trump suit. The hand below illustrates the not infrequent necessity for such a lead; in such cases all the Defender can do is to be brave, and, having determined what suit offers the best chance for the required number of tricks, lead that suit regardless of what his own holding in it may be.

South, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

North:
♠ 10 8 3
♡ A 7 5
◇ K 6
♣ Q 10 9 5 4

West:
♠ A J 5
♡ 9 4 2
◇ 10 8 7 4
♣ A 7 6

East:
♠ K 9 4 2
♡ Q 3
◇ Q J 9 3 2

South:
♠ Q 7 6
♡ K J 10 8 6
◇ A 5
♣ K J 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

North's bid of three hearts, after South has raised the clubs, is very fine; without committing himself to a game bid in hearts, North tells his partner that he has adequate support for that suit, but less than the five playing-tricks required for a double raise—otherwise he would have preferred a raise to three hearts on the first round of bidding.

West's opening lead was the four of diamonds, South winning with the Ace. South now led a heart to Dummy's Ace, intending to finesse through East for the heart Queen; but East was forced to show up his Queen by playing it on the second round, and a third heart lead by South completed the process of drawing trumps. South now led the club Jack, and West allowed him to win it, but when South followed this with the club King West won with the Ace.

West could now see that the club suit would furnish discards for such losing spades as South might have, so that the only chance of defeating the contract was to take three spade tricks immediately. This could be done if East held the spade King-Queen, of course; and if East held only the spade King and South had the Queen, the three tricks could still be won by West's underleading his spade A J 5. So West led the low spade, East won with the King, and a spade return gave West two more tricks, setting the contract.

To make this lead, West had to overcome his natural hesitancy to lead from a tenace, but although he knew that if South held the spade King his Ace would never win a trick, he also knew that if he led the Ace he would not defeat the contract.

Mrs. Culbertson will be very glad to answer questions on bridge. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and address your questions to Josephine Culbertson, in care of this newspaper.

Perhaps you have hesitated to try Midol for fear of some harmful effect. Midol does not contain narcotics, and is as harmless as the aspirin taken for an ordinary headache.

Why not get the slim aluminum case of Midol tablets you see on the counter in every drug-store, read the directions, and be prepared? Taken in time, it may spare you any pain at all; if the pains come upon you unaware, they are definitely relieved within a few moments of taking. Midol acts immediately, and it is effective for several hours. Two tablets should see you through your worst day.

I TRUST, NOW THAT THE New York Yacht Club has saved the America's Cup for Tiffany and Co., it will have the good grace to give full credit to the Swedish canvas tusslers and rope yankers who manned the Rainbow.

Austen Lake

The yacht authors who wrote the living, breathing document of the Newport races said as how the Scandinavian deck hands, the Larsons, Olsons and Swansons, out-hoisted and out-tugged the pink-cheeked amateurs of the Endeavour and by the knowing qualities of their derby hat muscles glorified skipper "Mike" Vanderbilt.

This is in keeping with the human scheme. The General who squats in a bombproof, miles to the rear, gets public kisses and Congressional love when his doughboys, who get to be unknown soldiers, take a fortified position at bayonet point.

The college football coach who sits ulstered on the sidelines with a hot-water bag at his feet, becomes a sage through the bruises of his athletes.

And tons of fancy type are spent on the baseball manager whose hired men slug and field his team to the heights.

Well, somebody has to stand as the symbolic hero. You cannot spread glory thin!

Just the same I think it would be nice if Cousin Harold would pen a few lines to the Swedish King saying how the America's Cup should rightfully be shared with the Stockholm Seamen's Union, and how, without Sweden's knob-kneed, shaggy tars (at $5 per day) the chalice might now be on its way to reside with the Crown Jewels in the Tower of London.

MAYBE THE LITTLE GODS OF baseball are waiting to have their second and best laugh of the season.

First laugh came during the spring training period, when Bucky Harris of the Red Sox frowned back at his old Detroit mates and said "Well, there is one team we will beat," a public remark that scalded Mickey Cochrane and set his rubber plant ears to wagging.

But the best laugh may come Saturday and Sunday of this week when Brooklyn's "contemptibles" meet the lofty Giants in a goodbye series.

You recall Bill Terry's pre-season jape, "Brooklyn! O, are they still in the league?" and how last spring in Florida when Casey Stengel took his Dodgers to Miami to play the Giants in exhibition, he had a large sign printed, "So, we're not in the league, eh?" which he hoped to mount on a motor truck and roll it back and forth before the Giants living quarters.

Only then he did not use the sign, because the Dodgers lost. And they kept losing to the Giants all this season—14 of 20 games.

But now! Here go the Giants, twittery and fagged, only one game ahead of the Cardinals. And Casey is getting out his old sign, ready to parade it Sunday. Terry will be quick to get the point.

WHEN THE FROST IS ON THE PUMPKIN, then race-stable owners begin to trundle their steeds South by easy stages. For them the purples, golds and russets of New Hampshire's autumn hold no thrill.

Thus at Rockingham now, a growing scarcity of dobbins is causing the track to make tenant horses do double duty. Cousin George, Morheart, On Sir and Bright, are among the many nags which have been raced on consecutive days lately.

Narragansett's proprietor is shuddering for his pretty painted plant and is sending messengers with invitations scurrying thither and yon, even Owner O'Hara doing some of the important missionary work himself.

He, better than anybody, knows that a horse track without an ample supply of horses, is no teaser for the public's betting funds.

INCIDENTALLY, THE GIANTS MADE a sweetheart gesture toward the Cardinals and Brooklyn two weeks ago which may cost them the pennant.

On September 7 and 8 the Cardinals were rained out at Brooklyn, and the games, being the tail end of the final series, appeared to have leaked into nothingness.

But the Phillies came forward with an offer to move up and play a doubleheader on Saturday, September 21, leaving Friday vacant and permit the Dodgers to play off their games with the Cardinals.

This required the unanimous consent of all other teams in the league, and particularly the Giants, which were most concerned. But Terry's club was leading with a margin of five games then, and he gave permission with a careless wave.

That day Dizzy Dean and his brother, Paul shut the Dodgers out in both games.

Then the Cards had another lift from Lady Luck. The White Sox played off their home schedule ahead of time and left an open Monday, allowing the Cards to jump into Chicago and stage another waste game with the Cubs.

They won that one, too!

Canzoneri Gets Even With Dublinsky

By Universal Service

New York, Sept. 27—Tony Canzoneri, former lightweight champion of the world, smashed his way back into the lightweight and welterweight picture at Ebbets Field when he gained a unanimous 10-round decision over Harry Dublinsky, hard-hitting youngster from Chicago.

Canzoneri was outweighed by 5¼ pounds, coming in at 134¾ to 140 for Dublinsky.

I[illegible] was a fast-stepping, smooth-boxing Tony w[illegible] greeted the Chicago boy at the [illegible] gong.

In the fifth Tony crossed a sharp right to the jaw that almo[illegible] floored Dublinsky. Another [illegible] opened a gash over Harry's left eye in the same round, and a left hook caught Harry flush on the jaw in the next stanza, again nearly upsetting him.

Tony began to tire rapidly in the seventh, eighth and ninth, but never gave up. Dublinsky kept charging at him with fists flying, trying vainly for a knockout blow, but Tony kept dancing away, despite his fatigue, and protected his wide lead.

[illegible] recovered remarkably in [illegible] round and became once again the slapping, jabbing Canzoneri.

He caught Dublinsky with a right under the heart and followed with a terrific left to the jaw that almost sent the Chicagoan down. A hard right opened a gash over Dublinsky's left eye just as the bell rang.

This was the third meeting between the two, and the victory gave Tony a 2 to 1 lead.

Nicholson Vows Never to Design Another America's Cup Boat

By Lewis Burton
Universal Service

New York, Sept. 27—The death knell of America's Cup yacht racing in this generation was sounded by Charles E. Nicholson, designer of the British sloop Endeavour, before he sailed for England aboard the SS Mauretania.

Supplementing T. O. M. Sopwith's now historic: "I will never challenge again," Nicholson indignantly vowed

"As long as I live, I will never design another America's Cup boat."

There could be no more smashing blow to the possibility of a challenge in the next few years.

Even with Sopwith withdrawn from the picture, there were still two or three wealthy subjects of King George V who have been toying with the idea of building a Class J boat to carry on in the event of Endeavour's failure.

Nicholson, however, is considered the foremost designer of single-masted boats in England.

Thre is no one who closely approaches him, and, as far as is known in America, the only one who distantly resembles a top-flight racing yacht designer is the marine engineer, Fyfe, who supervised the construction of Sir Thomas Lipton's fourth Shamrock.

A new engineer will have to come to the fore to replace Nicholson before another cha[illegible] be advisable. He was [illegible] sincere in his determination to keep as far away from future international yachting [illegible] as possible.

There is possibility, of course, that some monied Briton will purchase Endeavour and dare to bring [illegible] is back here with a professional crew.

But this course would not seem to be the wisest [illegible] Endeavour's blueprint is in [illegible] hands of W. Starling Burgess [illegible] of Rainbow or [illegible].

If the time were to [illegible] for the building of another [illegible] certainly [illegible] advantage of all Endeavour's [illegible] and add a few new devices.

Only continued advance in the construction of [illegible] make it possible for [illegible] have a chance. However, Nicholson, with some show of [illegible] asked reporters:

"What is the need for another challenger when we have Endeavour?"

Flag Prospects

Following are the pennant prospects of the Giants and Cardinals:

The [illegible] of Georgetown [illegible] near Haverhill) are [illegible] the success of Charlie Williams [illegible] pitcher for the Town Team entry in the Pentucket Baseball League.

They've gone to the extent of writing in to the office [illegible] 50 of them, entering young Williams in the Boston Evening American [illegible] Contest.

Sometime before next spring, a committee headed by Judge Emil Fuchs of the Boston Braves will select two local sandlotters to go south with the Braves. If they [illegible] both will be tendered con[illegible].

So you fans who have been tardy [illegible] in the names of your favorite twi-leaguer, get busy and do so before it is too late. An entry blank for this purpose will be found below.

Harold S. Kietsie, official scorer of the Pentucket circuit, is of the opinion that Williams will develop into a find for the Braves if given a chance.

"The past season saw Williams twirl in 13 league contests, winning eleven of them. He averaged ten strikeouts a game.

NORTHEASTERN LOOKS FORWARD TO BANNER GRIDIRON YEAR

HUSKIES BOAST TRIPLE THREAT QUARTET

By Walter Kiley

A modern day football team boasting one good triple threat back considers itself most fortunate. But Al McCoy, Northeastern's up and coming head coach, has a quartet of sparkling backs each and every one of whom can run, pass and punt in better than average fashion.

The Huskies open their second season of varsity play on Saturday. American International College of Springfield is the opening day opponent.

And in spite of the fact that the Amicos broke away to a [illegible] victory over Connecticut State last Saturday, McCoy is quite confident that with nine lettermen and two promising sophomores in his starting line-up, the Huskies will get away to an auspicious start this week.

VETERAN LINE

The backfield of triple threats will line up with Sophomore Ray Pelletier, 153-pound Salem all-around athlete at quarterback. Jay Hart, last year's freshman quarterback and one of the East's leading punters, at right half. Stewart Mayberry, 169 pounds, shifted from quarterback where he played in 1933 to left halfback, and Allan Hakanson, 175-pound right half a year ago, back in the important fullback post.

Pelletier and Hart are newcomers to varsity football. But their showing as first year men and their handling of their assignments in practice sessions to date indicate that they should carry on with their more experienced backfield mates in capable fashion.

Every member of last year's line, with the benefit of the experience thus gained, will be on the starting frontier against the invading Amicos.

GOOD SEASON PREDICTED

Capt. Dick Mitchell, 170, a keen and fast man getting down under punts, will be at right end; George Dean, 185, an alternate with Gay Milbrandt a year ago, at right tackle; Pete Yesikenas, 172, right guard; Ike Kovich, 179, center, Adolph Chaplick, 173, left guard; Joe Chrusz, 186, left tackle, and Francis Tuscher, 162, understudy to Capt. Brad Johnson last season, at left end.

In all, the team looks to be much smarter and keener than in the first season of varsity play, and with capable backfield reserves of good weight and height plus a smattering of lettermen linemen, should finish the eight-game schedule with better than an even break.

Salem's Star Witches Fly Along Unbeaten Football Trail

ROGER JALBERT — BERNARD GIBBONS

The spearhead of the Salem high football attack is formed by Jalbert, former fullback who is filling in at center, and Halfback Gibbons. Gibbons is Coach Bill Broderick's latest gridiron masterpiece. He lacks experience, but his natural ability overcomes that handicap. Salem already has beaten New Bedford Vocational and Marblehead, and plays host to Providence Central Saturday. (Picture by Boston American Staff Photographer.)

Salem, With Two Veterans, Faces Rocky Road; Eight Games Ahead, And All Are Tough

By Bill Connell

Lean years have fallen on the black robed Witches of Salem high. Bill Broderick says so. Last year many of his stars had skyrocketed from the school firmament. A hollow shell is Salem's eleven this year, with only two veterans. Most of the varsity graduates next June, so the future holds little hope.

Indeed, Salem is such a piece of gridiron wreckage that probably it will win only eight or nine of its 10 hard games. Salem fans simply must grin and bear it. It's a sad world for them, mates.

You can't blame them if they expect victories. In 11 years at Salem Broderick has sent 105 winners to the post, while 11 were tied, and 16 defeated. A record hard to beat.

CAPTAIN CAN'T PLAY

There are some real reasons for Broderick's gloom, however. His captain, George Wiggetman, permanently has retired from football because of a shoulder injury.

Right Tackle Stan Wydra and Halfback John Rubin are the only veterans. Four lettermen who saw little active service last season have varsity jobs. The others are green.

"You can't expect much without material," said Broderick. "And there's not a setup in the eight remaining games."

Roger Jalbert, yesteryear a capable back, holds center. His stocky build, 162 pounds and football sense rapidly are making him a first class pivot.

HAS WON TWO ALREADY

Squad members of note are Robert St. Charles and John Briggs, centers; Dave Sutizback, Ed O'Leary and Robert Lilly, guards; Bernard Colin, 200-pound freshman, Stan Kulik, Martin Millard, Albert Nazaroff, Ed Swinarski and John Bochinski, tackles; Marty Donovan, Walter Englehart and John Driscoll, ends.

Bob Roode, quarter; Dick Jurlowicz, Chester Obremski, George Lavasseur, Stan Eusko, Al Michaud, Al Litka, and Leon Cawley, halfbacks; will out the list.

Salem opened with a 19 to 0 victory over New Bedford Vocational. It edged Marblehead by a safety distance, 2 to 0, last week. Saturday Providence Central invades Salem, then follow Everett, Newbsryport, Lawrence, Peabody, Bangor, Lynn English, Lynn Classical and finally Beverly.

No wonder Broderick is a mite pessimistic. Pollyanna herself might well don the w. k. sackcloth and ashes, facing so rocky a fall journey.

Matman Held for Illegal Entry

St. Albans, Vt., Sept. 27—Held for entry, Gerald Stockton, 27, of Montthe grand jury on charges of illegal real, a professional wrestler, was in [illegible] day, unable to raise his $500 bail.

Immigration officials said the wrestler entered Vermont last Saturday after being driven in an automobile to Frelighsburg, Que., just over the Vermont-Quebec border.

They said he had planned to have an automobile drive him from a point just over the Vermont side of the [illegible] to Porland, Me., where he had a wrestling engagement.

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 27—Clyde Sukeforth, Brooklyn catcher, was married last December 8 to Helen Miller, it was revealed here today. Sukeforth is a Maine boy.

Harvard Freshman Squad Reduced

Coach Cliff Gallagher, Harvard freshman mentor, sliced his yearling squad from 200 to 50 players today.

The 150 freshmen who were dropped were expected to report to their house teams, whereas 35 players, the nucleus of an eight-team league, are already practicing daily.

Mat Results

Rockford, Ill.—Jim McMillen, 217, Antioch, Ill., threw Hans Bauer, 214, Germany, in 40.37 in a wrestling match last night. Dick Raines, 228, Dallas, Tex., and Jack Smith, 204, Chicago, draw, 30.00. Ole Olson, 220, Milwaukee, threw Pete Schuh, 235, Vancouver, 21.18.

Holyoke—Count Zarynoff, Boston, defeated Harry Lundin, Ithaca, N. Y., best two in three falls. Lundin took first fall in 18.31, with crotch hold and body slam. Zarynoff took second in 14.02 with spread eagle, and third in 18.28 with cradle hold and body press.

Syracuse—Ed Don George, North Java, N. Y., threw Emil Dusek, Omaha, with body slam in 35.50.

Westbrook, Me.—Rudi Martin, Trenton, N. J., threw Hank Barber, Cambridge, Mass., best two in three falls. Barbour took first in 22 seconds with flying tackle. Martin took next two in 9.02 and [illegible].35 with a heel and body press and a lift and press.

KEARNS LOSES FURNITURE

Los Angeles, Sept. 27—Furniture worth $2500 was removed from the home of Jack Kearns here to satisfy a chattel mortgage held by Eddie Slocken.

The prize fight manager was not home but the papers were served on his wife, Lillian.

Last Monday Kearns was arrested for drunkenness. He was fined $20, then released.

U. S. Beats Britain

Oyster Bay, L. I., Sept. 27—The United States scored a clean sweep over England in the opening race of their six-meter yacht series here.

REDSKINS WIN GAME, 60 TO 0; LOSE WRIGHT

The Boston Redskins had another victory to their credit today but it may prove a costly one.

As the pros swamped the Massachusetts All-Stars at Pearl street stadium, Malden, in a floodlight encounter, 60 to 0, Ted Wright, halfback, dislocated his elbow late in the first half. It may be that he will be out for the season.

More than 10,000 turned out for the game, and were treated to a rare exhibition by the pros.

Although the best players around the district were pitted against them, the pros mowed them down like nine pins all during the game.

Hank McPhail's 52-yard run, Battles' all-around work and Pinckert's blocking were features.

Hagen Defendant in $7500 Suit

St. Paul, Sept. 27—A suit for $7,500 damages was lodged here today against Walter Hagen; his son, Walter, Jr.; the St. Paul City Railway Company and two others.

The suit is the result of a traffic accident July 14, in which 6-year-old Laurence H. Johnson of this city was killed.

Greater Boston Boys Make Good at Dartmouth

Hanover, N. H., Sept. 27—A half dozen Massachusetts boys are rated among Dartmouth's most promising backfield prospects this fall, and their work has featured scrimmages this week as head Coach Earl H. "Red" Blaik whips his squad into shape for the traditional opening game with Norwich Saturday.

A pair of sophomores in fullback roles have been particularly impressive and bid fair to develop into mainstays before the season is out. John Handrahan, chunky 185-pound youngster from Hull, who piloted the freshman team last fall, and Tony Geniawicz, rated as an All-American scholastic back and shot putter while at Lynn English, have been making good.

Their work on delayed bucks has resulted in several touchdowns during scrimmage. Handrahan, particularly shifty in a broken field yet possessing plenty of leg drive for line bucks, is rated above Geniawicz at present, drawing the varsity assignment and serving as safety man on defense.

Jim Aieta, the Greek speedster, who won all-Boston honors as a halfback at Dorchester but who has seen sparse service at Dartmouth, seems better than ever this fall.

His speed, changes of pace and shifty running make him particularly dangerous in a broken field and he has frequently broken loose for long gains in scrimmages.

Little Eddie Chamberlain, who scarcely tips the scales at 155 pounds and learned his football at Lynn Classical High, is coming into prominence this fall after a season of inactivity with the scrubs.

Eddie now rates the first team left halfback assignment, since the veterans, Capt. Jack Hill and Bill Clark, are out with injuries, and his running and passing assure him of plenty of service this fall.

Norman Rand, whose fate here has not lived out to the expectations fostered by his brilliant record as an all-Massachusetts quarterback at Salem high school, is temporarily on the third eleven, but his work this week would indicate a more promising assignment is probable.

SOPHS BREAK IN

Normie has been the only third stringer to make any headway against the varsity in scrimmage, and, with noticeably poor interference, has wormed his way for sizable gains. His punts, ranging up to 60 yards or more, are further assets, and he is especially adept at getting off quick kicks with great effectiveness.

Two Bay State sophomores have been outstanding in the line this week. Donald Otis, last year's freshman captain and former star at Gloucester High and Deerfield Academy, and Gordon Bennett, a Swampscott boy.

Mr. Boston Says:—

Curley and Bacon To Watch Title Go In Garden Ring

By JACK CONWAY

JAMES M. CURLEY, Democratic candidate for Governor, and Lieutenant Governor Gaspar Bacon will each occupy box seats as Ed Don George and Jim Browning battle for the heavyweight wrestling championship of the world at a Crosscup-Pishon Post show at the Garden tomorrow night.

Curley and Bacon are more interested in wrestling than in any other sport. Perhaps this is because wrestling of one form or another is so essential to anybody who wishes to succeed in politics.

Mr. Boston

In the past, Curley and Bacon have each attended the major wrestling attractions in this city. Both are anxious to find out whether Browning or George is the better grappler.

Curley and Bacon will get perfect relaxation [illegible] show and [illegible] which may [illegible] during the hectic campaign [illegible] ahead of them.

Meanwhile Browning and George report they are ready for the coming tussle. The big fellows are in excellent physical condition and prepared to set a torrid clip every second they are in the ring.

The semi-final will find Casey Kazanjian in action against Ernie Dusek.

There will also be a battle royal among four colored boxers, stirring music by the Norwood Legion band and a dramatic military spectacle at which Madame Rose Zulalian, contralto, will sing the "Star Spangled Banner."

HALEY LOOMS AS BEST PUNTER ON HARVARD SQUAD

LITMAN, FORD PRESS BOB FOR KICKING POST

Harvard's successor to Johnny Dean in the punting department will be either Bob Haley, Chet Litman or Georgie Ford.

Haley, last year's varsity signal caller, will never equal Dean for distance, nor will Ford or Litman. But Haley has developed a quick kick, which, with proper deception, will be nearly as beneficial to Harvard as Dean's long, booming spirals.

Litman, the Brookline lad, did little or no kicking a year ago, and was used strictly as a running back. This fall he'll be a triple threat, kicking and passing as well as running, and the wider repertoire will make him more dangerous than ever.

While Ford has trailed both Haley and George [illegible] in quarterbacking and is rated as the Team C backer, his kicking ability assures him of steady work.

Fergy Locke, the Crimson speedster, also has shown a sudden aptitude for kicking, and will be used more often in that department than a year ago.

Matching the three punters, are Myles Lane's point kickers. The former Dartmouth ace has taken George Blackwood, a sophomore, and Fred Moseley and Billy Parquette, a pair of juniors, under his wing and reports that his efforts are showing results.

MERCIER KEEPS MAT TITLE

By PAUL WHELTON

You may well believe that things were pretty torrid last night at the Boston Arena what with Nature's heat itself and with Al Mercier, the Springfield realtor, retaining his New England heavyweight wrestling title against Bob "Bibber" McCoy of Cambridge.

Mercier who deserted real estate and its lands and leases to kick and dump large persons on wrestling canvas, won the first and third falls in a battle that was hot all the way and that lost, incidentally, a shot for McCoy at Ed Don George, the present world heavyweight titleholder.

McCOY TURNS "BAD"

As the windup of one of Alex MacLean's best mat cards, Mercier and McCoy, the latter once a Holy Cross football player, worked mainly with fists and fire during their total of nearly 50 minutes of battling for the New England belt, now held by Mercier.

For the first fall in 17 minutes 49 seconds the [illegible] former realtor came out of two McCoy heels and punches to drop-kick "Bibber" and flatten him.

McCoy took the second in 20.51 with his back flip and tackle after being twice felled with Mercier's hitch-kicks.

The third went to Mercier in 11:45 when he came out of a body lift and slam to take McCoy with a head chancery over shoulder.

Mercier, throughout the match, aimed at wrestling, while McCoy, who has often been a friend of the fans against the real, so-called "bad men" of the mat, took this role himself.

O'DELL DISQUALIFIED

In the lead-ups Ted Towne of New York won over Phil Allen of Springfield in 5.56, Dutch Leonard of Waltham, a former boxer who still wears a rubber over his teeth, flattened Al Kimball of Arizona in 7.33, Boris Demetroff of these parts defeated Odilio Marchioni of Boston when Marchioni quit in 12.54 under an Australian wrist scissors; Freddie Moran of Newport, R. I., and Mickey Roache of Boston drew in 15; Gene LeDoux of Canada won over Jack Costa of New Haven in 10:44; Cracker Blackstock of New Orleans defeated Al Peckham of Dorchester in 8.02, and George Jenkins of Kentucky was given the decision over Red O'Dell of Los Angeles when the latter was disqualified in 20:27 because that wasn't the kind of game being played.

Little Fellow With a Great Big Heart

That's Sam Simons, Concessionaire at Track

By Dave Egan

Rockingham Race Track, Salem, N. H., Sept. 27—The Old Colonel devoutly hopes that Herr Hitler, the big Heil man from Germany, does not hear of this article because it concerns a Jewish gentleman who lifted himself to prosperity by his bootstraps.

It has to do with a little plumpish party who blinks through eye glasses with kindly blue eyes. It has something to do with his wife, too, for it wasn't so long ago that they tended a delicatessen store on Bickerstaff street, directly in back of the State Theater in Boston.

They were modest people in those days, and they still are modest and [illegible] about their success. It was a long haul from those days when they were dishing out scuppers full of sweet pickles, and olives, and dumping potato salad into small card-board containers.

The man is Sam Simons, who is the restauranteur at this track. At the Garden and the Arena, and also down at the track in Houston, Tex., it is Sam who provides the provender for the gentlemen and ladies who attend the track.

Back in 1922, he stepped from his small delicatessen store into the Arena, when he bought the concession to serve frankfurters and piping hot coffee and tonics at the fights there.

That started the big-time career of Sam Simons. His wife worked with him in those days, tending a modest counter where candies were sold. Those were happy days for the little Simons family. They grew and they prospered. And life was a rosy thing.

Then Boston Garden came into being. Sam Simons stepped in there, as well as the Arena, [illegible] frankfurters and steaming hot coffee and [illegible] cakes.

Of all the people who worked at the Garden when it was opened, Sam Simons is one of the few remaining original employes. Tommy Watters, the head ticket man, is still there but you can number the rest of them on the hands of "three fingered" Mordecai Brown.

Through all the transitions of officials and regimes, Sam has stayed on. It made no difference whether [illegible] Fairbanks or Harold Dunn or Jack Dunn or Major O'Keefe were the head.

Sam [illegible] the real [illegible] for the [illegible] concessions. A smiling [illegible] as kindly as he did back in those Bickerstaff street days.

May the little man who served scuppers full of potato salad and sweet pickles know that he [illegible] wished a scupper full of success.

CASHMAN LEANS TO CARDINALS

show Bill Terry they're still very much in the National League.

If the race doesn't end in a tie, as this agent expects, he leans toward the Cards as the winners.

The Wednesday fumbles by the contenders were both unexpected. It was the consensus in baseball circles yesterday morning that both the pace-setters and pursuers would win their remaining games.

We were talking with Eddie Collins up at the Fenway. He felt that the Giants would finish up with three straight wins and thought the Cards' chances were just as good of grabbing off five games in a row.

The Sox general manager opined that the Cards loomed as slightly more formidable opponents for the Tigers than the Giants and praised the sportsmanship of the New York management in agreeing to let the Cards, Dodgers, Pirates and Phils shift games so as the runners-up could play off two tilts in Brooklyn last week, which they won.

In such a close race as is now being waged in the senior loop, the loser can usually look back and recall one game or inning or, perhaps single play that wrecked its hopes.

If the Giants lose this year, it will ever be Collins' belief that they blew the title in the eighth inning of last Sunday's nightcap against the Braves.

With the bases full and one out, Bill Terry singled to center. Joe Moore, fastest of the New Yorkers was on second. He rounded third and set sail for home on the hit. About half way to the plate he suddenly halted and started back for third.

He could have counted standing up. Instead, he was nipped trying to return to the hot corner. If he had tallied, the Giants would have won in regulation distance. As it was, they made only one run on four hits and a walk in that frame and lost in the 11th.

"I fear that one play may cost the Giants the championship," remarked Eddie.

"Cocky" has a novel idea in the event the Giants and Cards tie.

"The Tigers might grow stale waiting for the world series to start," he chirps. "I would suggest the American League pick an all-star team to play against the champions so they could stay in shape. I would be glad to send any of the Red Sox players to Detroit for this purpose.

"The idea isn't original with me. When the A's won the pennant in 1910 or 1911, the National League race didn't end for a week after ours, and an all-star aggregation was assembled to furnish the competition we needed to stay in trim."

Irish-American to Field Eleven

The Irish American A. A. of South Boston will be represented on the gridiron this year by a fast semipro club. Charlie Peck, former Pere Marquette and Fordham star, will coach the team. He will be assisted by Joe McCarthy. Walter McDonough is captain.

The team will open Sunday at Lowell against the Lowell A. C.

Manager Joe Kenneally has a few open dates on his schedule. He may be reached by telephone at South Boston 2681 or by writing to 890 East Second street, South Boston.

U. S. to Compete in Olympic Meet

New York, Sept. 27 (US)—The United States will compete in the 1936 Olympic games in Berlin, the executive committee of the American Olympic committee decided in a special meeting at the New York Athletic Club.

Following the report of Chairman Avery Brundage of Chicago, who had been sent to Germany to investigate alleged discrimination against Jewish athletes, the 16 members of the committee who were present passed the resolution.

Sophs Break Into Tufts Lineup

Three sophomores apparently will be rated as Team A men as Tufts faces Colby on October 6 in their first grid game on the Tufts Oval this season.

Accidents and sickness have left the Jumbo veterans weak, and the newcomers are getting all sorts of breaks.

Roy Woodworth, ace tackle, is recovering from diphtheria, while Ollie Borden is still favoring a recently mended fractured ankle, making both men unavailable for regular play until late in the season.

Jack Rendall, Fred Goodall and Tony Spath are the leading sophomores who are making the first eleven. Rendall and Goodall are taking the guard berths, while Spath is being alternated with Raymie McLean in the backfield.

The present lineup consists of Fred Oliver and Johnny Grinnell at end, Sam Fox and El Smith at tackle, Rendall and Goodall at guard, Ben Carlyn at center, Captain Walter Froelich, Dick Hingston, Roger Keith, Raymie McLean and Tony Spath in the backfield.

Canobie Club to Stage Fox Trials

The Canobie Fish & Game Club of Salem, N. H., will conduct their second annual field trial of fox hounds Sunday, September 30. Registration can be made at the clubhouse, located near Hall's Crossing, Salem, N. H., Sunday at 4 a. m., and the trials will begin at 5 a. m.

The committee has chosen an ideal location for the trials, overlooking the beautiful Rockingham racetrack and there will be plenty of foxes to keep the dogs busy during the hunt. A large number of entrees have been promised from different sections of New England and the winners will be eligible for additional honors at a later date.

The committee in charge of trials include Arthur W. Smith, chairman; William F. Smith, Joseph Elward, Charles E. Peabody and Richard Rushton.

What the Stars Did

EAGLES SELECT FIRST TEAM

Coach Joe McKenney of Boston College revealed today the starting Eagle lineup for Saturday's tilt with St. Anselm's. It is the same group that started against the freshmen on Tuesday.

The line: centre, Paul Donohoe; tackles, [illegible] Galligan and Henry Ohrenberger; guards, Captain Dave Couhig and Dimmy Zaitz; ends, Ed Furbush and Bob Cash; quarterback, Paul Flaherty; halfbacks, Pat Avery and Bob Curran; fullback, Tom Brennan.

Alec Pzenney, sophomore guard who has been taking the place of the injured Zeitz, will start Saturday's game if Zeitz's injured shoulder shows any sign of going back on him.

Pzenney, a former Salem High and Kents Hill player, has shown some sparkling line play and is a fine placement kicker.

Paul Donohoe, former English High star, whom McKenney has been training for the center birth will also learn the left guard assignments, and Joe Keaney, sophomore tackle, will be transferred to the guard group the coach revealed today.

The rest of this week will be devoted to drilling for St. Anselm's with the Saints' plays being put on by the second and third teams.

Phils Ruined Giants

New York, Sept. 27—Turning back the hands of time, baseball fans today recalled another stance in which the Phillies played an important part in deciding the National League pennant race much in the same manner as their double triumph over the Giants in the past two days might cost the New York Giants the 1934 flag.

In 1908, the year the Giants lost the playoff game to the Cubs to decide the flag winner, Harry Coveleskie, Philadelphia pitcher, turned back the Giants three times in a series during the last week of the season. His three victories cost the Giants the flag, baseball men agree.

Vines Advises Perry to Accept

[illegible]

"Perry is foolish if he doesn't accept the $25,000," said Vines. "The situation may change in another year. Some youngster like Frankie Parker, Donald Budge or Gene Mako may come along and knock Perry over. He isn't invincible. Once he loses his supreme confidence he won't be so hard to beat."

ROMAN SOLDIER WILSON'S BEST BET

Grand Acre Standout to Win Sixth Race

Manchester purse [illegible] half furlong dash [illegible] bet here tomorrow a[illegible]

The black son of [illegible] Niambia placed [illegible] of the Belknap and [illegible] handicaps in his only outings over this strip and has only to run back to either of those races in order to grace the winner's [illegible]

WHITTEKIND, LORD AUTUMN HIGH FINANCE

FIRST RACE—$800 claiming maiden two-year-olds [illegible] furlongs

Una O	x103	Red [illegible]
High Finance	111	Lord A[illegible]
Lady Adair	x103	Dawn [illegible]

A[illegible] eligible
Brandon	[illegible]
Whitteking	116

WHITTEKIND is on the eligible list and may not get a chance to parade postward. The Greentree youngster has raced close up in most of his starts over this strip and shape up a the best on paper dope Lord Autumn [illegible] ing effort to finish [illegible] Tracker and On Her Wa[illegible] The Warm Stable colorbearer went right along with a fast early pace and did not weaken until a 16th of a mile from home. HIGH FINANCE cut out a dizzy pace for a little over a half mile in his last start, which was at six furlongs.

Uppercut, Jim Ormont, Morheart

SECOND RACE—$800 claiming, three-year-olds and up six furlongs

Pompohone	ax1[illegible]	[illegible]	x100
Easy Bid	105	Parties	[illegible]
Jim Ormont	11[illegible]	Harte	[illegible]
Paddock	x1[illegible]2	Morheart	[illegible]
Dark War	x109	[illegible]
Coming Back	x1[illegible]

UPPERCUT, a fast [illegible] at five furlongs a few days back should relish the increased distance of this affair. The high time gelding was badly outpaced in the early stages of that last affair, but closed with a rush and was only two lengths off Morheart and Kai-Finn at the finish. JIM ORMONT drubbed a fair field that included Strenuous and Happy Scot last out. The Ormont gelding shapes up as strictly the one to fear off that effort. MORHEART was never better but the Morvich mare may find the distance a bit beyond her staying powers.

WEDDING RING, CHAIN, CURLING

THIRD RACE [illegible] three-year-olds and up [illegible]

Koterite	112	[illegible]	x1[illegible]
Wedding Ring	x1[illegible]	C[illegible]	x1[illegible]
Victor[illegible]	113	Pant[illegible]	[illegible]
Lauretta Nash	109

WEDDING RING, a winner of two straight races may chalk up his third consecutive victory in this event. The Golden Broom gelding just oozes with class and is well suited by all conditions. The opposition is slightly better than anything encountered to date but is quite within his realm of capabilities. CHAIN'S last two races have been right to the hickory. Last out, the Westwick gelding placed [illegible] at tops and should experience little difficulty in saving the short end.

ROMAN SOLDIER, ALBUQUERQUE, POLISH BEAU

FOURTH RACE [illegible] one half furlongs

Light Brook	110	Jesse D. M.	102
[illegible]	[illegible]	Albuquerque	11[illegible]
Polish Beau	110	Roman Soldier	110
[illegible] Sweeper	102	Teddy Cat	105
[illegible]	102

[illegible] ROMAN SOLDIER should never leave this issue in doubt. The Cohort juvenile carried 120 pounds in the Belknap and was beaten only a neck by the fleet Frady Cat. ALBUQUERQUE has the necessary speed to be on the front end [illegible] and [illegible] high [illegible] save the [illegible] POLISH BEAU. The latter turned five panels in 1:00 this morning as his final.

BYLONA, RED JUG, BRASS MONKEY

FIFTH RACE [illegible] three-year-olds and up one and one-eighth [illegible]

Bylona	111	Big Red	x10[illegible]
Red Jug	x99	Fabius	110
Morahat	x112	Brass Monkey	x101

The boys that handle the split-second timers tell me that BYLONA is razor sharp and [illegible] a word of beating [illegible] an affair of this kind. RED JUG [illegible] is [illegible] descending the scale [illegible] his last two starts against better ones and figures to offer the more sterner contention. BRASS MONKEY appears to have taken a new lease of life and should be along in time to snare the short end.

GRAND ACRE, COUSIN GEORGE, LAMPORTE

SIXTH RACE—$800 claiming three-year-olds and up one mile

Cousin George	x100	Lamporte	110
Captain Jetty	x108	Little Wing	112
Grand Acre	x111	How High	116
Yancey	x111	Doorkeeper	x103

I find it difficult to get away from GRAND ACRE'S last race. The son of The Wanderer raced a [illegible] in 1:4[illegible] that effort to win by two [illegible] in hand from COUSIN GEORGE. The latter is dropping considerable weight off that last effort but I just can't see him beating the top one. LAMPORTE is from a stable that is always lovely and [illegible] as good as anything else for the short end.

Vested Power, Don't Blush, Thatch

SEVENTH RACE [illegible] claiming three-year-olds and up [illegible] mile

Thatch	[illegible]	Grand [illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	x[illegible]	Vested Power	x111
Don't Blush	x1[illegible]	Pomace	106
[illegible]	11[illegible]

x[illegible] apprentice allowance.

VESTED POWER has been dropped down among his own and should not miss earning brackets. The W. H. Gallagher colorbearer was slated to perform on [illegible] day's card, but that should not stop him from handing this poor [illegible] DON'T BLUSH raced in improved fashion at Aqueduct and [illegible] next beat. THATCH is from a stable that likes a long price [illegible] come up a good [illegible]

AMINCOS HAVE ST. MICHAEL'S GRID ACES

By WALTER KILEY

While Northeastern's varsity [illegible] [illegible] M[illegible] for the coming season are most optimistic. The present freshman team is big and strong and would occasion no surprise by sweeping its five-game schedule.

The question is being asked on all sides, "What is this American International College?"

The college itself dates back to [illegible] when [illegible] its charter in Lowell. Later it was shifted to [illegible] although it has [illegible] or around Boston.

Chester Stowe McGown is president and it is a co-educational college granting degrees in arts, business administration and social science departments. It has an enrollment of more than 400, about two-thirds being boys.

The college offers special advantages to foreign born boys and girls who number close to half of the student body. Yet the fact is that its first string line-up is conspicuous by the absence of foreign names.

Two of the Amincos' backfield, Quarterback Lavin and Fullback Peavey, weighing 151 and 187, respectively, were members of the St. Michael's team which the Huskies defeated a year ago, 9-0.

Ed Parsons, Northeastern faculty manager, scouted the Amincos against [illegible] State last Saturday. He reports the visitors to be well coached and fairly heavy. They scored their one touchdown on a [illegible] forward pass [illegible] Lavin.

HANLEY NAMES STARTING TEAM

LeRoy B. Manley, better known as "Pat," will do a little polishing here and there on his Boston University [illegible] today and tomorrow as [illegible] preparation for its opening game [illegible] Brown at Providence Saturday.

Coach Hanley has given his squad only one short session of contact work all week, fearing injuries. Today and tomorrow's workouts will be very light.

The Terriers realize that in Brown they are meeting one of the best teams in this section but they hope to give the Bears a real tussle Saturday.

The team that starts Saturday will be made up of two seniors, five juniors and four sophomores. The [illegible] George Atodery and Homer Beserosky, will be at the guard posts and they will flank [illegible] Louie, veteran center, who is a junior. The two [illegible] Gross and Fred Nichols are both sophomores, while the ends [illegible] Van Iderstine and [illegible] juniors.

[illegible] and Warren McNa[illegible] speed merchants, will start the halfbacks and are both juniors. Ray Maddocks, the quarterback, and George Timson, the fullback, are sophomores.

Dodgers Remember

New York, Sept. 27 (INS)—Brooklyn baseball fans today were willing to remind Bill Terry, manager of the New York Giants, of that old adage, "Chickens come home to roost."

They have in mind the remark, "Is Brooklyn still in the league?" said to have been made last spring by Terry, and they are thinking of those two remaining games the Giants must play with the Dodgers on Saturday and Sunday, which may determine the pennant fate of the champions.

Cronin Tagged as He Weds

By Associated Press

Washington, Sept. 27—Joe Cronin youthful manager of the Washington American baseball club and Miss Mildred June Robertson, adopted daughter of club President Clark Griffith, were married at 10 o'clock this morning in St. Mathew's Catholic Church.

The nuptial mass was celebrated by the Rev. T. J. Murray of Branford, Ct., a friend of Cronin's. Arthur Crowley was best man and Miss Thelma Mae Griffin was maid of honor.

As Cronin prepared to drive away, he turned to one of the police commissioners and, in shaking hands with him, passed him a traffic summons ticket with which some officer had tagged his machine.

"This is the first favor I'll ask of you, commissioner," Cronin laughed.

A Little Sisterly Advice

MAUREEN O'SULLIVAN NORMA SHEARER

Maureen O'Sullivan takes her troubles to Norma Shearer, one of the stars of "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," which opens its second week at Loew's State tomorrow. Frederic March and Charles Laughton share star honors.

Notable Films on Boston Screens

Film programs at Boston's first run houses for the coming week find holdovers of several of the most notable of the fall pictures, to which public response has been so enthusiastic that a lengthened engagement is called for.

At the Paramount Fenway today, "Now and Forever," with its star trio of Shirley Temple, Gary Cooper and Carole Lombard, shares screen honors with the detective mystery, "The Case of the Howling Dog," mystery comedy with Warren William and Mary Astor in the central roles.

At the Fine Arts the French talking version of Alexandre Dumas' "The Three Musketeers" will be held over for another week starting today. Aimee Simon-Girard, Andree Lafayette and Harry Baur have the central roles.

Tomorrow at the Metropolitan the Cecil B. De Mille film, "Cleopatra," with Claudette Colbert as the star, Warren William and Henry Wilcoxon in the leading roles, and a strong supporting cast which includes Ian Keith, Joseph Schildkraut, C. Audrey Smith and Gertrude Michael.

On the stage, Ben Blue, comedy dancer of screen and stage fame, heads the new footlight program, sharing top honors with Billy Costello, owner of the voice that comes to the screen in "Popeye The Sailorman." The show is based on the famous strip cartoon, and features in addition to its two stars the Vercelle Sisters, Jackson Brothers, Ray Thome and the Elida Ballet. Fabien Sevitzky once more conducts the Metropolitan Grand Orchestra in musical impressions.

At Loew's State tomorrow, "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," with its trio of Academy winners, Norma Shearer, Fredric March and Charles Laughton, in the leading roles, starts upon its second week. Maureen O'Sullivan, Katherine Alexander, Ralph Forbes and Una O'Connor appear in the supporting cast of the film version of the romance of the poet Robert Browning, adapted from the stage play by Rudolph Besier.

The further adventures of that ace of detectives, Charlie Chan, top the screen bill at the Keith Boston tomorrow, with Warner Oland in "Charlie Chan in London." Supporting Oland in this new film are Drue Leyton, Mona Barrie, Alan Mowbray, E. E. Clive and Madge Bellanmy.

The new vaudeville at the Boston offers Ranny Weeks and his orchestra, with Frank Hunter and Mae Percival headlining the program in "Wopology." Others billed are Frank Gabby, Carmen, Bell Brothers and Grace; Vanderbilt and Daye; Mary Kathryn Roan, the Two Dunkers and the Paul Renard Girls.

"One Night of Love," starring Grace Moore, opens tomorrow at Loew's Orpheum, with Bob Hall and the Three Samuels Brothers topping the vaudeville program.

At the Gayety

At the Gayety for the remainder of the week the double film program presents "Baby Take a Bow," starring Shirley Temple, with James Dunn and Claire Trevor in the cast.

Joe Rines at Cascades

After extensive renovations the new Cascades Roof and Sweetheart Bar at the Hotel Bradford will have its formal opening for the new season tomorrow night.

Joe Rines

Joe Rines, radio favorite and popular Boston orchestra leader, returns to the conductor's stand and will inaugurate the new season with his dance music at 6:30 p. m.

This season the Cascades will be appropriately named, for as the central feature of the new decorative scheme an actual waterfall has been installed. L. Walter Osterstock, managing director of the Bradford, has had personal supervision of the renovation and redecoration of Boston's loftiest supper room, which has been carried out by Van Atten and Olsen. The room has been transformed completely, with a modern classical style of decoration, and a color scheme of green, cream and copper.

As in past seasons, an elaborate floor show will be staged twice nightly, at 7:30 and 11:30 p. m., with the revue featuring headliners from musical comedy and Broadway supper clubs, and a chorus line of 16 talented dancing girls.

Lights and Shadows

By George Holland

With "Ah Wilderness!" ready to open at the Plymouth Theater Monday evening, October 1, and enthusiastic over the prospects of a long road tour for his play, Eugene O'Neill felt like talking about anything.

Eugene O'Neill

In Boston last spring, as I remember, a phalanx of gendarmes made it impossible to meet Mr. O'Neill, but in New York things are more lax.

Mr. O'Neill [illegible] to listen in New York, and from the point of view of the interviewer that was bad. Mrs. O'Neill effectively intercepted the telephone calls, the messengers and the waiters, thus isolating a corner of New York where an amiable dramatist could call his soul his own.

His enthusiasm [illegible] spread the conversation [illegible] Sea Island Beach, the Adirondacks, Medan in Sumatra, swimming, climates, Cecil Rhodes, George M. Cohan. It hardly mattered which or what he talked about. After all, he did not have to write the interview.

As for "Ah Wilderness!" it is "a comedy of recollection," as the title-page [illegible] text explains and [illegible] for which O'Neill has [illegible] affection. The romantic biographers have given him a background of pothouses, ships, sailors and farmers. But he [illegible] that that is not the complete story. Most of his [illegible] and at least one [illegible] he spent in New London, Conn., where his father had a house and owned a good deal of property, including the Monte Cristo cottage, which was the [illegible] for the Buick car.

There are fragments of autobiography in "Ah Wilderness." In 1906 Mr. O'Neill was 17 years of age, like Richard Miller in the play. At that time Mr. O'Neill was reading "The Quintessence of Ibsenism," Swinburne and Omar Khayyam, and he too was convinced by what bowdlerized information he could get that Oscar Wilde's crime was bigamy.

There are other family items strewn through the play. Like Nat Miller, the newspaper proprietor of the play, Mr. O'Neill's father always [illegible] that "there's a peculiar [illegible] belief," [illegible] that invariably [illegible] him as though he ate [illegible] name of weakfish [illegible] and he also repeated [illegible] time as though it were [illegible] story of how he saved a [illegible] chum from drowning.

On these occasions it was the custom of the two O'Neill brats to lower their heads politely and snicker to themselves.

But the historical background of "Ah Wilderness!" goes hardly deeper than that. Crackbrained and turbulent as Mr. O'Neill might have been in his high school days, his experiences were not those of Richard Miller, and James O'Neill, the romantic actor, was not the prototype of Nat Miller, the newspaper publisher.

Nor were there a younger brother and sister in the O'Neill family. A brother ten years older than Eugene was the only other offspring. So the members of the spirited Miller family group are to be taken as representative folk of that time in any of those "large small towns" in Connecticut, and the episodes are drawn from things he saw and heard quite apart from personal history.

He has a great affection for the sort of solid family life "Ah, Wilderness!" discloses. If he had to choose among people he would select the same kind today, and he believes that fundamentally they remain very much what they were in those nostalgic days—loyal, kindly and high-minded.

Two years ago the central idea came to him just after he had drearily finished the second draft of "Days Without End," and he plunged straight into "Ah, Wilderness!" completing the first draft in six weeks. Now that it is on the stage and acted very much to his taste, with Mr. George M. Cohan playing Nat Miller to the hilt, Mr. O'Neill is his own best audience. He is ashamed to admit how much the comedy amuses him. Some things have to be confidential.

To judge by his plans and projects there is a great deal more to come. At the age of 46 Mr. O'Neill is a little graver around the temples and the lines are a little more firmly drawn on his face, but his eyes have the luster of a man who is in good health and spirits and who is eager to go on vigorously with the job. It is this interviewer's private opinion that the tension has relaxed a good deal.

AL JOLSON AND RUBY KEELER WILL SHARE HONORS

Jean Harlow Will Be Starred in Film Based on Saratoga's Racing Season

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor, Universal Service

Copyright, 1934, by Universal Service.

Los Angeles, Sept. 27—Al Jolson won't do any private cussing at his leading lady in "Casino De Paree" and she won't kick about the way he steals her scenes. You see Ruby Keeler, no less, is to be her husband's leading lady and, since she and Al happen to be sincerely in love, it's pretty apt to be a case of "you first, dear Gaston" with both of them.

The plot of "Casino De Paree," by Bradford Ropes, deals with an attractive hoofer and a successful musical comedy actor. Sort of a story of the life of Ruby and Al. Earl Baldwin is writing the script and it [illegible] on Mr. and Mrs. Jolson a chance to do their specialties, as Jack Warner explained to them.

Louella O. Parsons

Jean Harlow's public wants her sophisticated and a trifle naughty. Yet the censors won't let Jean so much as vamp a man without a marriage license or wear a dress that is cut lower than fashion decrees proper. What's to be done? Well, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer are doing the best they can for her. When she finishes "China Seas" there is another idea in the offing. Here it is. Bernie Hyman is working out a story called "Saratoga," which James K. McGuinness and Robert Hopkins are writing for Jean. The story takes place at the famous watering place during the racing season.

Judge Priest is going to continue as one of our screen characters. Will Rogers sends word that he was [illegible] to know the Kentucky jurist so well that he feels a personal interest in him. So Irvin Cobb, creator of Judge Priest and his philosophy, has been engaged by the Fox company to write a new one to have in readiness when Rogers gets back.

* * *

Here's a hot piece of news right off the griddle. Sam Katz, formerly associated with Paramount and one of the best film men in the business, has confided to some of his intimate friends that he will be out here before many days. He is going to unpack his suitcase at Culver City and take the job offered him to produce pictures. Mr. Katz, it is said, will take the place left vacant by Walter Wanger when Walter became an independent producer.

Elsie Janis

Elsie Janis, who has never made a stage appearance since the death of her mother, is harkening to a grand stage offer. She and Gilbert Wilson, her young good looking husband, will get up at the crack of dawn next Monday and start for Broadway via automobile. Elsie thinks it will be fun to make the trip this time of year when the weather is perfect and it's still warm enough to make traveling pleasant. Gilbert has never seen Elsie on the stage and he is just as excited as she is over the prospect of a season in New York. And let me say, if the play is as good as it sounds, we won't be seeing Elsie in Hollywood for a long time.

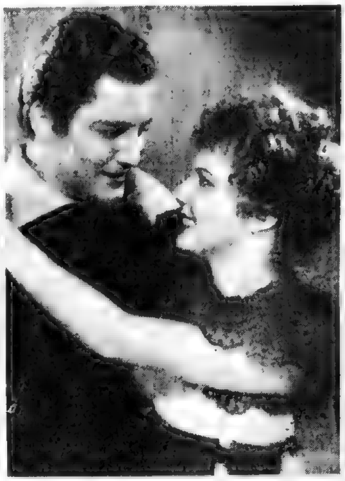
Snapshots of Hollywood

[illegible] do newspapers, also private word on "Don Juan" a disappointment: too bad so much money was spent; FREDERICK PERRY, champ tennis player, due in Australia October 16 for matches, asked to return here for a movie; LANNY ROSS giving a swank party for his radio gal, MARY LOU; MRS. COLBERT back from Paris, reports Hollywood styles are all right for her; she brought CLAUDETTE a few smart sweaters, but believes U. S. has good style of its own these days; CLARK GABLE racing his horse at the Los Angeles County Fair just as everyone in filmland going in for the big local event; MAE WEST giving the crowd a treat by drinking pink lemonade and watching the races; NORMA SHEARER doing some shopping, running in the back way wearing pajamas and hurrying right back to the beach; VIRGINIA VALLI planning to subdivide the Palm Springs property owned by her and CHARLIE FARRELL, the Palm Springs season starting off with a bang October 1 opening day and reservations at the local hotels [illegible] there [illegible]. That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Love's Young Dream



ROBERT DONAT ELISSA LANDI

Robert Donat and Elissa Landi exchange vows in Alexandre Dumas' classic, "The Count of Monte Cristo," which is the screen attraction at the Keith Memorial.

Globe Trotter News Events

The arrest of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, about whom the net of justice is tightening as the alleged kidnaper of the Lindbergh baby, is shown on the screen in the latest edition of Hearst Metrotone News now on the screen at Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters. The Globe Trotter comments on the events at New York police headquarters where Hauptmann was placed in the lineup, and the wife of the suspect talks for the cameraman and avows her faith in her husband. Following the actual happenings thus far in the Lindbergh case, Attorney General Cummings states his convictions that the solving of the crime will bring an end to the vicious racket of kidnaping in America.

There are still more exciting pictures of the Rainbow in the final races off Newport for America's cup. The luffing duel which caused Commander Sopwith's protest is pictured.

The stratosphere pioneer, Professor Jean Picard, is shown in Detroit with his wife, who will accompany him on his next trip to the upper skies.

Tremont Program

Opening at the Tremont tomorrow is "Little Miss Marker," the Damon Runyon story which brought fame to the diminutive Shirley Temple as its star. Adolph Menjou appears as the gang chief who has the guardianship of the five-year-old foist upon him.

On the same program is another feature film, "As Husbands Go," and short screen subjects.

New Program at Bowdoin

For the remainder of the week at the Bowdoin the screen attraction is "Paris Interlude," with Madge Evans and Otto Kruger in the leading roles. The companion picture brings the screen comics ZaSu Pitts and Slim Summerville to the screen in "Their Big Moment."

Topping the new vaudeville bill are The Fantinos, daring aerial artists, with Burns and Clemens, the Cosmopolitan Four, Tiffany Sisters and Art Spaulding appearing on the program.

Another important carrier, the Eastern Massachusetts Railway, also released its income statement for August today. In the case of this leading line serving major industrial sections outside the Boston area there was an increase in gross operating income. But higher expenses took their toll and a deficit of $19,654 in excess of that last year is shown in the final red figure of $62,057 for the month. While the textile strike undoubtedly will leave its mark on the company's September report we cannot help but feel that the senior obligations of the road present better than average opportunities to inject into investment portfolios speculative bonds designed to raise income.

Now that the market has definitely made an upside resistance level without stopping for much rest on the way it may be well to allow for a fair setback in here to restore internal strength. A slide to say 88 on the 30 industrial index should satisfy at this time. The important features of course will be a contraction of volume and a narrowing of market breadth on the dip. At the same time a lessening of turnover around top prices will be reassuring in that it will dispose of fears that the rally was engineered to facilitate distribution.

Outlook for October trade continues good. Consumers' goods industries will probably fare better than capital goods makers. A prime stimulant is seen in the retreat of finished goods prices during the summer. At one time at mid-year, raw material prices were far out of line with finished materials and the recession of the latter will undoubtedly create a better demand for the balance of the year. For our part, we continue to believe those who insist on a bearish trade view are treading on dangerous ground and likely to be left far behind.

Trend Is Lower in Dull Bond Dealings

By Associated Press

New York, Sept. 27—The bond market turned somewhat reactionary today, with scattered selling appearing in the rail issues.

On the whole however changes were narrow and gilt-edged issues held up well. U. S. government [illegible] were mixed. Selling in rails [illegible] reflected reports of August net operating income by a number of carriers, showing substantial declines from the same month of last year.

New York Central 5s in the earlier dealings dipped ½ to 65½ and St. Paul 5s declined ½ to 27. Southern Pacific and Erie issues were also fractionally lower. American Telephone 5s traded during the morning a [illegible] off [illegible] were mixed with Columbia Gas [illegible] up fractionally [illegible] sold [illegible] off a trifle.

In the U. S. Government list the new [illegible] Home Owners [illegible] sold off [illegible] recovered part of their loss. Federal Farm Mortgage 3s were a little firmer. The Liberty 4¼s of 1952 were actively traded virtually unchanged from yesterday's prices.

Foreign government issues turned a little reactionary. Brazilian 6½s dipped a major fraction in profit-taking on their recent rise. German 5½s dipped a small fraction, but the 7s were about steady.

STATE STREET SIDELIGHTS

Josephthal & Co.—As October 1 draws near there will probably be a tendency on the part of traders, particularly floor traders, to proceed cautiously although there is now much less uneasiness over regulation than a short time ago. This is due in part to reports that the margin requirements will not be severe and will necessitate few changes in accounts.

Paine, Webber & Co.—For eight successive trading days, the daily high has been rising. That fact alone attests to the market's recent vigor, but it also suggests the probability, as well as the desirability from a technical standpoint, that some minor corrective setback develop before prices make much further progress.

Shields & Co.—Report persists there will be another Presidential "fireside talk" and while in prospect the improved tone of the market should be sustained.

Clark, Childs & Keech—There is still a good deal of pessimism and apprehension among the rank and file, but sentiment on the part of more important interests seem to have taken a decided turn for the better.

Sir Josiah Stamp—After all, the mainspring of all individualistic enterprise of any kind is the making of profit. Unless you are getting people to make money you will never get re-employment in America.

SUSPEND FIRM OF FILER & CO.

By International News Service

New York, Sept. 27—The brokerage house of Filer & Co. of 39 Broadway today was suspended by the New York Stock Exchange for insolvency. This is the first suspension by the exchange for insolvency since that involving the firm of Stetson & Blackman on September 13, 1933.

The firm filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy this morning.

The firm is comprised of Leo J. Filer, Albert Kastan, Wilfred H. Fritts, exchange member, and special partners J. Manheimer and Alleta E. Filer.

Its exchange members were specialists in Houston Oil, Philip Morris, Goodyear Tire & Rubber, and Youngstown Sheet & Tube.

The exchange in announcing the suspension stated:

"The committee on business conduct of the New York Stock Exchange have been advised by Filer & Co. that no losses will be sustained by the public because no customers are involved."

Bank Clearings Down 1.4 Per Cent

New York, Sept. 27 (AP)—Bank clearings in the principal cities of the United States during the week ended September 26 totaled $4,193,115,000, a loss of 1.4 per cent from the $4,254,634,000 in the same week of last year, according to reports to Dun & Bradstreet.

New York city clearings totaled $2,671,760,000, a decrease of 7.8 per cent from the $2,897,357,000 last year.

Gains were reported by the principal cities outside of New York, with Richmond the highest, reporting an increase of 51.9 per cent.

Pennsy Income for August Lower

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—Pennsylvania Railroad Company reports August net railway operating income of $3,703,036 against $7,623,980 in August, 1933. Gross revenues for the month were $28,168,232, compared with $32,900,785 in August last year.

SEES BOOM IN INDUSTRY AS ON THE WAY

By B. C. FORBES

A veritable boom in durable goods is, I believe, approaching.

It may or may not start this year; it may not start in earnest even early next year.

But that enormous expansion in activity will appear by and by is, I think, a foregone conclusion.

B. C. Forbes

Almost every individual, every family, every business concern, every big corporation, every railroad, every utility, every mining company, every farmer has been striving for several years to get along without things desired, things needed but not immediately necessary.

The day cannot be very much longer postponed when demand for such things must materialize. Should President Roosevelt succeed in convincing business and industry in the near future that the disturbing innovations of the New Deal have about ended and that from now on Presidential and governmental effort will be concentrated on restoring confidence, curtailing public largess, and taxation subordinating so-called reforms to worthwhile recovery measures, eliminating uncertainty over currency inflation and the like—then, I verily believe, this country would experience an extraordinary demand for modernized homes, modernized factories, modernized machinery, modernized railway equipment, modernized mining facilities, modernized power plants, modernized motor buses, modernized appliances, modernized everything.

General Johnson's elimination from NRA suggests that President Roosevelt reached the conclusion that "cracking down" swashbucklerism had gone too far and that the time has come for reverting towards normalcy, towards co-operation rather than coercion or dictation, towards Americanism.

The paramount, the most vital, the most urgent problem confronting President Roosevelt is to say and do what is needful to encourage hopefulness, faith, courage among the employing and investing classes, so that remunerative employment may begin to expand impressively.

Unless and until this be achieved the government cannot by and of itself provide an adequate volume of lasting employment.

As I see it, America is ripe and ready to go ahead, ripe and ready to satisfy enormous pent-up needs, ripe and ready to re-assert its inherent initiative, courage, enterprise, progressiveness.

May the turn come soon!

CREDIT GIVEN ATTENTION

By Associated Press

New York, Sept. 27—Credit rather than currency is receiving most attention in Wall Street financial circles these days.

Renewed talk of a currency "war" between the dollar and the pound, or of possible steps toward stabilization, have not evoked much interest. Most Wall Street experts regard the international situation as too unstable.

The potential effects of the devaluation of the dollar on domestic affairs, however, is a subject of lively conversation.

John T. Madden and Marcus Nadler writing in the current issue of "economic forum," assert that "the greatest and most lasting effects of devaluation of the dollar have been on the treasury, on the Federal Reserve banks and on the money market in general."

Drs. Madden and Nadler, who are director and assistant director, respectively, of the Institute of International Finance conducted by the Investment Bankers' Association and New York University, conclude that the international aspect of devaluation of the dollar is not very important at this time. But the huge surplus of gold created, providing a basis of gigantic expansion of credit, they find extremely important.

The basis for a credit inflation which might conceivably become a "debauch," according to these experts, has been laid. Whether the credit inflation will develop, they say, depends upon the future monetary policy of the Treasury, and upon the Federal Reserve authorities. Further tinkering with the currency might again impair confidence and prevent an expansion of credit.

UNITED STATES SMELTING REFINING AND MINING COMPANY

The Directors of the United States Smelting Refining and Mining Company have declared a quarterly dividend of 1¾% (87½ cents per share) on the Preferred Capital Stock and a dividend of two dollars ($2.00) per share on the Common Capital Stock, both payable on October 15, 1934, to stockholders of record at the close of business October 5, 1934.

SHARE PRICES FIRM AT CLOSE OF TRADING

New York, Sept. 27—Reports of a shift to the right by the administration involving the substitution of leading business men for the present "Brain Trust," brought renewed strength in the stock market today.

The reports were apparently further borne out market-wise by the steady liquidation of the metal shares, particularly the gold mining issues. United States Smelting tumbled more than 3 points as did McIntyre, while Dome, Noranda, and Alaska Juneau lost up to a point each.

STEEL HIGHER

Leading industrial shares including United States Steel, Bethlehem, and American Can scored gains running to more than a point.

Mail order issues were particularly strong with Montgomery Ward, Sears and Spiegel-May-Stern in steady demand more than a point over yesterday's closing levels.

Cast and the other farm equipments including International Harvester were well taken all through the session.

Highly mixed August railroad reports failed to check further advance in the railroad shares. Atchison, New York Central, Pennsylvania and Southern Railway moved up from fractions to a point.

Utilities were quiet as were the oils, aviations and specialties.

BULLISH ATTITUDE

Market commentators generally, while still cautious in their views of immediate trends, were inclined to maintain a mildly bullish attitude toward the stock list as a whole. Conditions, some thought, were moderately favorable for a modest fall advance, although intermittent backing and filling movements could be expected.

A number of reasons were advanced for a possibly better market picture. Among these were a turn to the "right" on the part of Washington, lenient margin rules to be announced by the Federal Reserve, or liberal interpretation of the requirements of the Stock Exchange and Securities Act.

Postponement of the effective date for enforcement of the new margin regulations to October 15 was pleasing to the commission houses inasmuch as the time extension will give them an opportunity to acquaint themselves with the somewhat complicated details of the ruling.

Announcement of Treasury officials that the conversion of some $1,250,000,000 Fourth Liberty 4¼s four-year 2½ per cent notes and 10-12-year 3¼ per cent bonds was successful did not furnish any surprise for banking circles which had predicted that the refunding would be effected without difficulty in view of the scarcity of prime investment offerings in corporate fields.

Position of Jewel Tea Seen Advantageous

Analysis Prepared by the Fitch Investors Service

Company sells coffee, tea, baking powder, soap and other groceries direct to consumer. It serves towns largely in the Middle West, having its production and packing activities concentrated in its plant at Barrington, Illinois. There are also branch warehouses in Dayton and Toledo, Ohio, Pittsburgh, Pa., Buffalo, N. Y., Washington, D. C., and Los Angeles, Calif. Eighty-four stores, comprising the Jewel Food Stores, Inc., subsidiary, are operated in Chicago. This unit was acquired in March, 1932.

All its coffee is imported and roasted, and this one article accounts for more than half its volume of sales. Approximately 60 other kinds of groceries and packaged foods make up its own trade-marked brands, and some standard nationally advertised brands are also sold.

Financial Position Sound

Capitalization consists solely of 269,450 common shares of no par value. Financial condition as of Dec. 30, 1933 was strong, with current assets to liabilities at 4 to 1 and cash alone exceeding current liabilities of $1,257,247.

(Lamar, Mo., Democrat.)

C. E. Butler found when he came home, late Saturday night, that his house had been entered and robbed. The thieves got a gold watch, a Gem razor, and they picked up a fountain pen, dropping it as they went out of the house, where it was found.

Mr. Butler sent for the bloodhounds of W. D. Thomas. The dogs ran off to a point in the public road, about two miles southeast of the house, where Mr. Butler figures the theives got into a car.

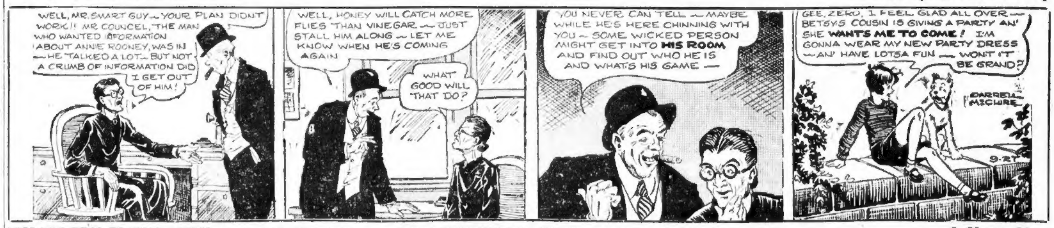
LITTLE ANNIE ROONEY

The Spiders and the Fly



WELL, MR. SMART GUY—YOUR PLAN DIDN'T WORK!! MR. COUNCEL, THE MAN WHO WANTED INFORMATION ABOUT ANNIE ROONEY, WAS IN—HE TALKED A LOT—BUT NOT A CRUMB OF INFORMATION DID I GET OUT OF HIM!
WELL, HONEY WILL CATCH MORE FLIES THAN VINEGAR—JUST STALL HIM ALONG—LET ME KNOW WHEN HE'S COMING AGAIN
WHAT GOOD WILL THAT DO?
YOU NEVER CAN TELL—MAYBE WHILE HE'S HERE CHINNING WITH YOU—SOME WICKED PERSON MIGHT GET INTO HIS ROOM AND FIND OUT WHO HE IS AND WHAT'S HIS GAME—
GEE, ZERO, I FEEL GLAD ALL OVER—BETSY'S COUSIN IS GIVING A PARTY AN' SHE WANTS ME TO COME! I'M GONNA WEAR MY NEW PARTY DRESS—AN' HAVE LOTSA FUN—WON'T IT BE GRAND?

U. S. Workers Turn Down Communists

DESPITE the disorders which accompanied the textile strike, now settled, we think American labor has earned credit for itself by steering clear of Communist agitators and accepting the mediation of the President's board.

Whatever the merits of the dispute, it was evident from the first that Communist influences were trying to gain control of it and to "run away" with it for their own revolutionary purposes.

President Green of the A. F. L. issued an admirable warning to the bonafide labor organizations involved, pointing out the dangers of Red interference and counseling arbitration instead of violence.

Violence occurred, unfortunately, but it seems to have been prompted by Communist "borers" from within, and to have met with little support or approval from the ranks of organized labor itself.

THE way now appears smoothed for the return of all the workers and settlement of the points at issue on fair terms to both employers and employed.

If this is the outcome it will not only be the best thing possible for all in the textile industry but also for every inhabitant of the United States.

The suspension of this great industry was a dangerous threat to recovery.

Its resumption should be a powerful aid to recovery.

And regardless of the economic aspects, a signal victory has been scored for common sense methods of adjusting differences and an equally signal defeat for agitation from outside.

Our congratulations to the American workers.

Whoever wants to, may send condolences to the Reds.

Yardstick For Boston

Launched 25 years ago with an article on the "Indispensableness of City Planning" by the late President Eliot of Harvard, The American City, an illustrated magazine devoted to municipal problems, publishes an anniversary edition this month.

The issue deserves special mention because it contains a creed by Harold S. Buttenheim, its editor, for cities still struggling with problems of growth and government.

Because the creed is such an excellent yardstick against which Boston's progress may be checked it is reproduced here.

"An abundant supply of clear, safe, palatable water.

"Streets that are well built, well lighted, well maintained.

"Sanitary disposal of sewage and garbage.

"Fire and police departments properly trained and equipped.

"Traffic control for safety and facilitation; fewer grade crossings.

"Plenty of parks, parkways, playgrounds and swimming pools.

"Banishment of slums, and building of well-planned home neighborhoods.

"Administrative efficiency and citizenship co-operation in bringing these things to pass."

It is gratifying to reflect that Boston, despite many handicaps, makes a fine showing on the basis of these standards.

The Housing Snag

Call it slum clearance or call it the elimination of substandard areas, most Bostonians today are demanding that projects for the improvement of living conditions be started here as they have in other large cities of the country.

Much criticism has been levelled at Washington because federal aid—in large sums—has been extended to New York and other cities while not one cent came to Boston.

In this connection, it is only fair to point out that the trouble lies with Massachusetts' own Legislators rather than with the officials in Washington.

The last session of the General Court adjourned without passing the necessary legislation for the extension of federal funds.

It is to be hoped that the law-makers who are to be elected this fall will make a better record for themselves on this important matter.

In fact, they might do worse than to make it an issue in their pre-election campaigns.

For Boston's Children

When the State began construction of the new highway linking Revere with the Sumner traffic tunnel in East Boston, it was necessary to take the land at Byron and Polk streets, in East Boston. For that land the State paid the City $19,000.

The property in question was a playground, needed by the children of the neighborhood. Now the City Council, through an order, introduced by Councillor Henry Selvitella of East Boston requests that the Mayor see to it that this money is used for the acquisition of new playground property.

On this matter there can be no two opinions. In times when the city's finances are hard pressed, it may be too much to expect a playground expansion program, but certainly no ground should be lost.

If children's land is taken for motorists' convenience, it must be made up to the children. They are most important citizens.

College Picks Youth

The freshman class at Columbia College this year, the largest since 1930, numbers 525 young men selected from more than 2000 representatives of the leading preparatory and high schools in the country.

The task of getting into Columbia or one of the other leading American colleges grows more difficult every year because of the large number of applicants and the restricted teaching facilities.

In a couple of generations, the American child at birth may have almost as much chance of becoming a President or a millionaire, as of going to Columbia, Yale or Harvard.

U. S. Ships Plowed Under?

The largest ship in the world, the new Cunard-White Star liner "Queen Mary" was launched yesterday.

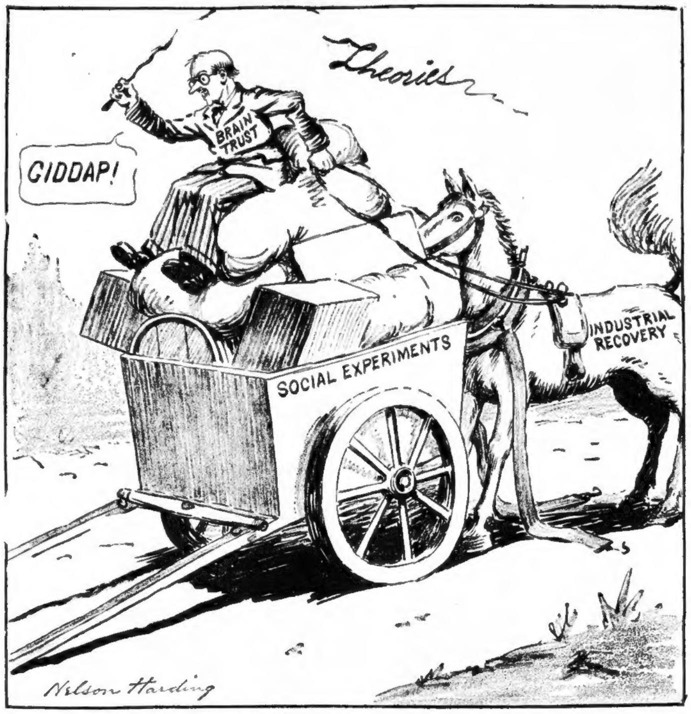
The steel masts have been installed in the new gigantic French liner Normandie, on which 3000 Frenchmen are working.

The largest ship in the American merchant marine, the Leviathan, has gone out of service for an indefinite period, perhaps permanently.

Congratulations, Secretary Wallace!

'The Cart Before the Horse'

By Nelson Harding



"Giddap, there!" the Professor shouts
And cracks down with his whip.
But yet the wheels don't seem to turn
Upon that vaunted trip.

Professor, the real trouble is
That you have put the cart
Before the horse, and that is why
You cannot even start!!

Teach Child to Read -:- By Marguerite Marshall

To encourage a love for good reading in children is to increase their interest in school work and to aid them greatly in their school career. Even more than teachers, parents have the opportunity to make readers of boys and girls, since parents are always at hand to supply reading material and to stimulate the use of it by suggestion and example.

More and more frequently, the public schools trace a close connection between reading ability, as established by test, and general scholastic fitness. Remedial reading work, among badly retarded pupils last year, had the happy result of sending to the head of their class some who had been two years behind the normal grade for their age.

One school superintendent takes so keen an interest in prompting the popularity of reading among public school students that he is having a special study made this autumn of books most useful to children of different intelligence quotients—and most appreciated by the children.

For reading, like kissing, goes by favor, and the young person whose nose is shoved violently into a "good book" unsuited to his taste will react not only against that volume, but against literature in general! Too many adults have had Shakespeare spoiled for them by being compelled to choke down "Macbeth" or "The Merchant of Venice" before reaching the age when they could assimilate either. Precocious children, on the other hand, resent what they scornfully term "baby books."

EXCELLENT IDEA

How can parents co-operate with the schools in making youngsters gradually and gloriously free of the world of great literature?

First, it's an excellent idea to have books around — not only public library books, but a family library, even, if like some of the electric refrigerators, it has to be an apartment house model. Those who fear that the cost of book-buying may unbalance the family budget should look up the bargains in cheap reprints, which include thousands of printed pages not only more worthwhile, but more amusingly readable than the two-dollar gambles in bright-jacketed new novels.

If children are "exposed" to books they are likely to prove as "catching" as measles or whooping-cough. The boys and girls will learn the trick of literary browsing. They will get the reading habit and, at first, this habit-formation is far more important than what they read.

Another useful expedient which parents can practice is to take the younger members of the family to motion pictures made from great books. The result, in very many cases, is to send the children to the public library, or the home bookshelf, for the volume on which the photoplay was based.

This assertion is no guesswork but one established by a most interesting survey of high school students, just conducted under the auspices of the National Council of Teachers of English. How discriminating and intelligent are the literary tastes of these students—given a little through the best type of motion picture—is proved by the titles of the books most frequently read, as a sequel to seeing the picture.

Some of the popular yet classic titles are "Tom Sawyer," "Huckleberry Finn," "Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde," "All Quiet on the Western Front," and "Moby Dick," "Arrowsmith."

Parents who are themselves readers of course offer the example that is more powerful than precept. Instinctively, they begin at an early age, give books for birthday and Christmas presents, make unobtrusive suggestions for reading to while away a rainy Sunday or a day in bed.

Such parents define new words, until questioners are old enough to be sent to a dictionary, and discuss the children's reading with them; especially the stories of great men and women in their childhood, which fascinate and inspire nearly all small folk. Many really enjoy true stories better than make-believe, and thus pleasantly acquire information which supplements their formal studies.

To endow children with an inexhaustible delight in books is not only to enrich their life at school but all their life to come. They may be poor, they may work at hard and dull tasks, they may travel little but on the wings of the printed word they can go anywhere, forget any drudgery or handicap. For as that shy New England genius, Emily Dickinson, learned and sang:

To take us worlds away."

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

I do not know anything about God.

I do not even know whether there is a God to hear me when I pray.

But I know this—

That often when I am tired and discouraged and hard-pressed I need to pray. And I have found by experience that there is Power enough in my own self to help me—if I honestly want to be helped.

Elsie Robinson

Perhaps that Power in me is really God. Perhaps it is some mysterious reserve fund of human energy. I do not know. And I have stopped asking.

But I pray—constantly. I pray to the wisdom and truth and beauty in me which I know—I pray to my Better Self. And my prayers are answered.

Today I am giving you one of my prayers. It may not help you in the least. But if it does, I'm glad.

TO MY OWN SELF I CRY, THAT I, MYSELF, MAY COME TO MY OWN AID.

Help me to be true to that which I do know

Of beauty, wisdom, strength and righteousness.

Help me cast off the laziness and the fear,

The spite, conceit, stupidity and greed

Which blind my eyes and trap my foolish feet.

Force me to see myself just as I am

Until I'm shamed and sickened by the sight—

Then set new visions flaming in my soul,

New clean rebellions pounding in my brain,

Until, through pain and fury I shall slowly come

To be the woman I have longed to be.

The way is dark, but I at least can be

True to that Inner Self which I do know

Loyal to that beauty I do understand

And strong to keep the faith with my own heart.

That is my prayer as to my Self I cry—

HELP ME TO BE AS TALL AS MY OWN SELF.

Marry-Go-Round

By Helen Rowland

The first lesson a bride has to learn, after she has taken off her wedding veil, is the gentle art of WAITING. Any woman not born with the resigned and placid soul of a "waiter" was not born to be happily married.

Helen Rowland

Most women spend three-quarters of their lives in a state of suspended animation, waiting for some MAN. Waiting for him to show up—or waiting for a showdown. Waiting for him to come home—or waiting for him to GO home!

Before marriage a girl gets enough preliminary practice to prepare her for the long endurance test to come.

She begins by waiting for a man to call her up, waiting for him to invite her out, waiting for the love-idea to break down his defense mechanism and sometimes, waiting at the church, until the ushers have braced him up and got him there.

After marriage, it's a case of waiting for him to get up mornings, waiting for him to come to meals; waiting for him to get through shaving and relinquish the bath-room mirror, waiting for him to grow up and stop playing games—and finally, waiting for him to slow down, remember his rheumatism and stop thinking of himself as a Don Juan. And that's some wait!

The worst folly a woman can commit is to lie awake nights wondering what has happened to a man, just because he hasn't shown up or called up for a week.

Nothing has happened to him, except possibly a new blonde. Or another "bender." Or a chance to go fishing.

Nothing ever does happen. We wish it would. Many a disgruntled wife has read the accident reports in the newspapers for years, half dreading, half hoping to find her "wandering boy's" name in the list of casualties.

But it is only good husbands who die young and suddenly. The other kind appear to be endowed with immortality.

Men are perverse that way. It is always the sober, steady-going man, who drives carefully and watches the traffic lights, that gets tangled up with a truck or smashes into a telegraph pole.

While the gay boy who is seven sheets to the wind zig-zags airily and safely through traffic and lands at the old garden gate without a bruise. Immortal—that's what!

The truth is that a man just forgets a woman when she's out of his sight as he forgets his old briar pipe. He will leave her waiting around for a week while he is absorbed in a big business deal, or a little summer flirtation or a new boat or a golf tournament—and then expects to come back and pick up the friendship, or the affair, right where he left off.

Human Side of the News; Cupid and Sir Basil

By Edwin C. Hill

The richest man in Europe, eighty-five years old, may marry a washerwoman's daughter. Such is one of the little facets of news in the Washington munitions inquiry—love and war, as in the standing chronicle of the ages.

It is Sir Basil Zaharoff, inscrutable master of world dominions of cannon and steel who, Paris persistently reports, may take as wife the dazzling, beautiful Princess Charlotte of Monaco.

The story of their lives outruns all the sweating invention of the penny thrillers.

The world knows the tale of the Greek urchin of Constantinople, tossed to affluence and power by the upheavals of the near East—his intrigue, his palaces, his treasures, his gambling houses, his Richelieu beard and his ghostly domination of chancellory and bourse.

TOSSES CHILD COIN

Less is known of the beautiful princess, also out of the land of Make Believe. The handsome Prince Louis of Monaco, richly caparisoned, rode his prancing stallion along a country road. By a roadside hovel, a washerwoman was at work at her tubs, and helping her was a beautiful child.

He tossed the child a coin and stopped a moment to chat with her curtseying mother. The end of it was that he made the winsome and ingratiating miss his ward. The mother, too, left her wash tubs to live in a palace, to dazzle Paris with her jewels and silken gowns.

The best tutors in all the principality were found for little Charlotte. She was an apt pupil. Easy it was to fashion her speech and behavior to court requirements. She had beauty and grace and tact. Her origin was forgotten, or at any rate, nobody seemed to mind.

She herself, however, had not forgotten. She often spoke frankly of her cottage days and she kept real friendships among the commoners — a circumstance which was to save the little principality later on. She married Pierre de Polignac, prince of the blood.

FAMOUS FIGURE

In Paris salons, in the famous watering places of Europe, at the casinos, she was a famous and distinguished figure—sought by famous couturiers to wear their gowns. They had a son, Renie, and for a time their home life was happy. In later years, there was discord and also in these years storm clouds gathered in the little toy state.

The rich and great were thronging to the casinos, flaunting their jewels and expensive automobiles, and there was discontent among the people. The court was supported largely from the revenue from the casinos, and the populace, demanding a larger share, became menacing.

Prince Louis, old and befuddled, fled to Paris. It was then that the Princess Charlotte turned to good account her friendship for the people. She went out among them, and in their own patois, told them why she thought they should not rebel. The revolution was ended. Prince Louis returned.

It was in 1925 that Sir Basil, then 76 years old, had bought the controlling interest in the great gambling concessions.

Only a year before he had married the beautiful Spanish princess whom he had loved for 40 years and it was only a year later that she died.

The attachment between the strange old man with the silver poniard beard and the Inverness cloak, and the beautiful princess grew with the years.

His castle was a great, mediaeval fortress on a frowning precipice. In its great halls there was a stately function, in honor of the beautiful princess. That was last May.

Paris insists that it was a betrothal there, signalized by Sir Basil's gold plate, which, it is whispered, he has bequeathed to the princess.

He is a lonely man, so deep in the shadowy intrigue which amassed his millions, that one thinks of him as lurking always in the moonlight in the shadow of a bastion—a pastel figure, quite unreal unless one bears in mind the blazing reality of all he has wrought in war and peace.

Strange caprice of Destiny, thus to bring together those waifs of other years—one a boy fugitive from a Turkish massacre, the other a lassie helping her mother with the washing as the Prince rode by!

The Tax Fiasco

THE chaotic and irresponsible searching by New York City officials for new sources of taxation is an evidence of the breakdown of the technique of public finance in the United States.

It should be the final reminder of the absence of a taxation philosophy in the United States.

The same Fiorello H. LaGuardia, who as a member of the lower House of Representatives blocked rational tax reform in 1932 by leading a demagogic "soak the rich" insurgency, now as mayor of New York sponsors the new hodge podge.

While in Congress, Mr. LaGuardia more than any other single personality was responsible for the failure of the movement to substitute scientific taxation for the existing chaos.

He expressed undying opposition to a federal manufacturers' sales tax, but is now identified in New York with a local program for taxing the gross receipts of business, for levying a 15 per cent tax on the income tax paid to the federal government in the current year, and for operating a lottery.

SUCH is the constructive alternative offered by the fiery statesman who blocked the general manufacturers' sales tax in Congress.

Thus Mayor LaGuardia confirms the opinion expressed at the time of the congressional fight that the opposition consisted of a "know nothing" group.

From a national standpoint, the New York incident is significant.

It indicated that we have come to the end of the rope in respect to unscientific taxes and duplicated expenses.

The financial emergency points irresistibly to the need of a new tax philosophy.

There must be CO-ORDINATION among federal, state and local spending and taxing agencies.

Otherwise, insolent public officials will kill the goose which lays the golden eggs.

Harry Hopkins at Washington recently implied that Americans do not yet know what it means to be taxed.

In answering this view, Professor E. R. A. Seligman, of Columbia University, said:

> "Attention has been called to England, which seems to endure with equanimity considerably higher tax rates than the United States.
> "It must be remembered, however, that the English system is in many ways different from that in the United States.
> "They have, indeed, a higher income tax, but they have no antiquated property tax. They have higher liquor, tobacco and stamp taxes, but they have no sales tax, no taxes on production, and virtually no taxes on business.
> "In American municipal, state and federal finance, the danger signals have long been set."

THE remedy lies in retrenchment THROUGH ELIMINATING UNNECESSARY GOVERNMENTAL OVERHEAD, especially local county government.

It also lies in a rational system for co-ordinating the tax collecting activities of the federal, state and local governments.

Instead of competing wildly with each other by duplicating each other's tax measures—all endeavoring to collect the same types of taxes—the federal government and the states should by agreement allocate to each type of government its proper tax field, and compel tax authorities to keep within their fields.

Once a program has been developed, each division of government could then concentrate on economy and efficiency.

Unless order supplants chaos in the realm of taxes, depression and unemployment will become chronic in the United States.

As a matter of record, machinery now exists for such an adjustment between Congress and the Legislatures of the states.

It should be made use of IMMEDIATELY.

President Roosevelt should take the leadership in bringing the country out of the prevalent snarl.
